The first Unit of the second scholastic year will consist of a revision and consolidation of the salient French language points covered in Form 1. This will help students acquire autonomous learning skills so as to progress according to their ability and become more aware of intercultural diversity. Games and ICT, such as PowerPoint presentations, videos and online activities based on the four strands, are used so as to make learning more attractive, thus motivating students and, as the title suggests, they will feel happy to be back at school so as to continue learning French.

| Speaking       | After greeting the students, the teacher shows a video or uses a recording of two persons greeting each other and talking about themselves. Then the teacher asks the students to do the same dialogue in pairs, thus revising the different types of greetings they have learnt in Form 1.
http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=9X4kc5zXQOI&feature=related
A revision of the numbers can be carried out through a game: each student is asked to write a number from 1 to 20 on a piece of paper. The papers are collected and redistributed so that nobody has his/her own paper; then the teacher calls out a number and the students who have that number will stand up. At the end the students can say which numbers were not chosen. To verify students’ knowledge of numbers from 20 to 100 the teacher can write some numbers on the board, then call out a number and ask a student to encircle it. At times the teacher will call out a number that is not written on the board; in that case the student is asked to write the number and encircle it. Students can also be asked to think of a telephone number and pretend to phone each other saying “Salut! Comment ça va?”... | Students will remember all numbers from 1 to 100 and be able to use them, when saying the age and telephone number of a person. They will also be able to ask and answer questions using greetings in a dialogue. (Speaking Level 7)
Students will remember numbers from 1 to 69 and be able to use them to say the age of a person. They will also be able to use greetings in a dialogue. (Speaking Level 6)
Students will remember numbers from 1 to 20 and be able to use them to say the age of a person. They will also be able to use greetings in a dialogue. (Speaking Level 5)
Students will remember numbers from 1 to 20. (Speaking Level 4) |
| 1. enable students to consolidate their speaking skills while revising the vocabulary and grammar learnt in Form 1 so as to produce simple dialogues in French. | In another game, the teacher will think of a famous person and the students will ask questions so as to guess who this person is. Thus, the students will revise questioning techniques as well as vocabulary related to the general description of a person. Students can then be given a form and asked to fill in the information required regarding a mysterious person. Later, they can use this as a plan for their creative writing. Students can also be asked to read out what they wrote to the whole class. The teacher can also ask students to draw or find a picture that resembles their mysterious person. The drawings and writings can later be exhibited in class. | Students will be able to use the correct question words and phrases so as to guess who the person is. (Speaking Level 7)
Students will be able to use the correct intonation to ask questions using the vocabulary they know so as to guess who the person is. (Speaking Level 6)

Listening

2. enable students to consolidate their understanding of simple French texts when spoken by native speakers or read out to them by the teacher.

Students will listen to recordings of texts on CDs or online so as to ensure that they are able to understand native speakers of French talking about topics tackled in Form 1. Otherwise, the texts can be read out by the teacher. Texts taken from past exam papers can also be used. The students will thus have the opportunity to revise questioning techniques. The teacher will give different types of exercises to suit students’ abilities. These can vary from True/False questions, multiple choice, continuation of sentences with words the students hear, open ended questions ...

Reading

3. enable students to consolidate their reading skills so as to understand texts on topics from everyday life.

The teacher chooses topics covered in Form 1 regarding everyday life situations, so as to give students the opportunity to consolidate and revise the vocabulary and grammar learnt so far. Students will read the text carefully and work out exercises related to it, according to their abilities, in order to show they have understood the text they read.

Various exercises can be given, for example: matching words to their meaning, True/False/Not Mentioned, continuing sentences, open-ended sentences, finding grammar structures in the text, giving a suitable title to the text ...

Sites, such as the one below, can help the teacher find online comprehension exercises that correspond with the abilities of the students http://www.ciel.fr/learn-french/comprehension-exercises.htm

Students will show that they have understood the text they listened to by answering open-ended questions. (Listening Level 7)

Students will show that they have understood the text they listened to by filling in blanks with words they hear. (Listening Level 6)

This activity can be used if the teacher finishes the lesson before the stipulated time. The teacher tells students that they will offer him/her a present each. He/She will accept some of the presents and refuse others, without giving the reason for doing so. In fact, the students themselves will have to find out this reason. The teacher can accept stationery objects, for example stylo, cahier, gomme, crayon…; words starting with a specific letter, for example T-Shirt, table, taille-crayon, tomate…; etc… thus revising vocabulary already covered. The teacher can also ask a student to conduct the game instead of him/her.

1. enable students to discuss a given picture.

2. enable students to follow given directions.

Students can revise the prepositions of place, such as; “sous”, “sur”, “devant” etc. through the following game. The teacher draws the outline of a house on the board. The teacher instructs individual students, using the preposition of place, to continue the drawing. Such instructions can be used; “Dessine un chien noir devant la maison”.

On the IWB students can be shown a plan of a town centre. After observing the picture students are asked oral graded questions. These questions will help students revise the prepositions of place and the vocabulary pertaining to the town.

At this point the teacher can introduce the new vocabulary linked with directions such as; “tourner à droite”, “traverser la rue” etc. by giving examples and pointing them on the town plan on the IWB.

Students can do online exercises such as the ones on this site: http://claweb.cla.unipd.it/home/smazurelle/dynamots/a1/m2/ae_indications.htm

Students are paired up and given a written route which they have to demonstrate on the town plan on the IWB. While one student reads the route the other can demonstrate it on the IWB. In groups students are given town plans. They listen to the teacher read different routes, which they have to mark on their plan. Groups can compare their marked

Students will respond to questions with short simple phrases. (Speaking Level 5)

Students will respond to the teacher’s questions with single words. (Speaking Level 4)

Students will follow simple oral directions. (Listening Level 7)

Students will follow simple oral directions through repetition. (Listening Level 6)

Students will understand single expressions such as “tourner à gauche”. (Listening Level 5)
Speaking and Writing

1. enable students to communicate directions through role-play.

   The teacher can revise the vocabulary related to directions through this game. An object is hidden in the classroom. A student is asked to find the object by following his classmate’s directions. Students are then divided in pairs to do a role-play. The students are given a town plan with two marked points, the departure and arrival. One student asks for the direction while the other indicates the way. Students can then swap town plans. Some students can be given written hints as a support.

   Students can then be led to write down a short message where they have to give the directions to reach a particular place. Some students can be given the message with missing words, which they have to fill in.

2. guide students to communicate directions in writing.

   Students will understand basic expressions linked with directions such as “à droite” and “à gauche”. (Listening Level 4)

   Students will engage in a role-play where they ask and give directions. (Speaking Level 7)

   Students will give a simple direction. (Speaking Level 6)

   Students will ask for a direction. (Speaking Level 5)

   Students will be able to communicate isolated expressions such as “à droite” (Speaking Level 4)

   Students will write down a text, indicating directions, where sentences are connected using conjunctions. (Writing Level 7)

   Students will join sentences logically to write down a short text where they indicate directions. (Writing Level 6)

   Students will choose the right words expressing directions to continue sentences in a text. (Writing level 5)

   Students will write down a message indicating directions by following a model. (Writing Level 4)

Reading

3. teach students to read the sounds /y/, /i/ and /u/.

   The teacher plays a recording of these words: “pendu”, “cri” and “coucou” asking the students to repeat the words. The teacher can ask individual students to write down these words on the board. Then the teacher highlights the different pronunciation of the three sounds. The students

   Students will be able to read words containing the sound /y/. (Reading Level 7)

   Students will be able to read words then listen to six words containing the three sounds. In groups they have to identify the sounds being pronounced. To further verify this discrimination of sounds the teacher asks some groups of students to go through their textbook and take note of words containing these sounds. Other groups will be asked to find such words without the help of their textbook. Students are asked to read out these words.

At this point the teacher can give out a graded dictation summing up the keywords and the phonetic sounds covered in this unit.

In this unit, the teacher will introduce the topic of Keeping Fit to students. The use of ICT like PowerPoint presentations, videos and online exercises facilitates learning and helps students assimilate as much vocabulary as possible in order to be able to engage in role plays and discussions about keeping fit. Students learn how to speak about various sport activities in both the recent past and the immediate future. Pair work or group work involving graded exercises will create an atmosphere of teamwork and group effort between students of different abilities. Other aspects include speaking about sport activities, well-known sport celebrities, famous sport events, sport venues etc. Students also learn how to ask questions about celebrities and events.

Game: The class is divided into pairs. Each pair is given a set of flashcards containing pictures of various sport activities, with a brief description of the activity underneath. Students take turns to take a card each. The student conceals the description from his/her partner and asks a simple question: Qu’est-ce qu’il fait? The other one tries to guess. Thus the student will have to speak about the picture. Ex. (il court le marathon, il fait du jogging etc) For each correct guess the student gets to keep the card. The student who manages to have the greater amount of cards wins the game.

(The teacher might want to use pictures from site below to create flashcards – objective of the lesson is however irrelevant to our lesson)

Closure Game: Students are shown pictures of internationally famous sport personalities and are asked to speak about them.

During this lesson the teacher will familiarize the students with pourquoi and parce que and their correct use.

Students are asked to listen and read the examples provided on this link. The teacher invites the students to observe the correct spelling of pourquoi and parce que. S/he points out that whilst the spelling of pourquoi never varies; parce que sometimes drops the final e, to be replaced by an apostrophe when preceding a word starting with a vowel.

5. help students understand the use of les adjectifs démonstratifs through simple exercises.

The activities proposed in this lesson will enable students to understand a simple French grammar point i.e. les adjectifs démonstratifs and use them correctly.

Teacher can start off the lesson by asking simple questions using les adjectifs démonstratifs.

Ex. Est-ce que vous connaissez ce chanteur?
Est-ce que cette photo vous plaît? etc

Questions can be accompanied by pictures through a PPT Presentation. Teacher then moves on to explain les adjectifs démonstratifs. Use the following online interactive activities to consolidate.

The teacher helps students understand the correct pronunciation of the different adjectives.

Teacher can dictate a few phrases or sentences containing les adjectifs démonstratifs to enable students to listen, decipher and ultimately use/write the correct adjective. Students can work in groups and help one another to identify the correct adjective.

Compréhension écrite: C’est les soldes!
This is a proposed comprehension text which helps to consolidate the acquisition of les adjectifs démonstratifs. It further helps to revise vocabulary pertaining to clothes and numbers (which they had covered in Form 1), and the use of vous and tu according to different contexts.

Written task: Je viens d’acheter ... Je vais acheter ...
Supported by a PowerPoint Presentation with pictures of clothes, students are encouraged to write about what they have just bought at the sales, and what they plan to buy very soon.

This task can be tackled in groups, so that better students can help the ones who are experiencing difficulty.
who have not attained a certain level in the writing strand. It will help to consolidate some of the points which have been tackled throughout this unit, namely le futur proche, le passé récent et les adjectifs démonstratifs.

Ex: Je viens d’acheter cette jupe. Je vais acheter ce pantalon.

This task could be taken a step further for students who have attained a higher level in the writing strand, whereby they are asked to compose an actual email to a friend describing what items of clothing they have bought at the sales and what they plan to buy next. Moreover such a task will enable them to become familiar with the French keyboard.

Number work started earlier on is reinforced and amplified. Both oral and written work are given due importance, especially when dealing with the way prepositions combine with the definite article. Various approaches are suggested: use of technology – PowerPoint presentations, Interactive whiteboard, short film clips – along with other teaching aids form the basis of this unit.

<td>A short PowerPoint about the various types of media which are prevalent in modern France may serve as a starting point for this topic. Students are introduced to the principal radio and television stations as well as to the printed media, newspapers quotidiens, hebdomadaires, mensuels and magazines about various topics of interest (fashion, youth, cars, hobbies, gardening, housekeeping...) Reference to the corresponding Internet websites is a must in today's world and therefore students may be encouraged to look them up for themselves and write short notes about them to be discussed later in class. Students might be encouraged to record short excerpts of a television production (for instance a TV advert) or part of a radio programme. Other students might be asked to look for French magazines or newspapers in the school library or elsewhere. This lesson about a particular aspect of French culture may be rounded up by having a class quiz or by having students working in groups on different worksheets. Students might even be asked to reproduce the various words in writing if the teacher wishes to verify whether they have been learnt correctly.

To round up the lesson, the class may be divided into groups: each group is given a few flashcards containing different parts of the body. One student at a time is invited to match his/her flashcard to a drawing of the human body. He/She is also required to pronounce the word on the flashcard. | Speaking and Writing | 2. teach numbers 60 – 100. | Numbers in French are a frequent source of difficulty for our students, especially in the range 60 to 100. It is admitted that it is rather complicated but the teacher should seek to introduce them gradually and systematically. It is most important that students reuse them as much as possible. Revising them quickly in class from time to time also helps. A PowerPoint presentation or reference to a document from the various websites about French numbers would be useful to get started. The teacher would do well to recapitulate the numbers already covered (1 to 59) by asking students to say out loudly a few numbers chosen at random. If time permits, their written forms might also be checked. Starting by “soixante” (emphasis on correct pronunciation), teacher should find little difficulty to get to “soixante-neuf”. Here he/she is to point out that the equivalent of 70 in French is “soixante-dix” (60+10); in a similar way, the other numbers up to 79 are introduced, emphasizing the fact that the body in French. (Speaking Level 6) Students will be able to match a number with its spoken form (both are given). (Speaking Level 5) Students will be able to repeat correctly given numbers in French. (Speaking Level 4) |
71 is pronounced “soixante et onze”. (Compare with 21, 31, 41, 51)

During another lesson, teacher introduces numbers 80-99, after a brief revision of the previous numbers. During the presentation, teacher should point out to the “s” in “quatre-vingts” (80) which is then dropped in successive numbers: “quatre-vingt-un”, “quatre-vingt-deux”, etc. Teacher should point out that with number 81 the ending “et un” is no longer adopted! Students should also be made aware of the hyphens joining the various parts of the number as in “quart-vingt-dix-sept”. Finally the number “cent” (accent on pronunciation) should look much simpler!

As a rounding-up activity a game of number lotto (with a student selected to read out the numbers in French) would possibly help the students to relax while reusing the newly-learnt numbers. Games involving telephone numbers, reading the numbers in twos, might be an alternative.

3. introduce students to the concept of reflexive verbs in French and their use in real-life contexts.

The lesson is introduced by inviting students to listen to a song in which various movements are mentioned in French: “je me lève”, “je m’habille”...

Having listened to the song students are then asked to try and repeat parts of it. A couple of suitable examples are written on board and students asked to comment about any observations: do they look like the usual verbs they met until now? What differences are there? Gradually, students will see a pattern developing: “me” always follows the pronoun Je, while “se” is found after both il and elle in singular and plural forms.

Students will then be led to compare these new verb forms with something they have been working with since their first lessons: the verb “s’appeler”. They are asked to point out what is common to these verbs. Eventually, the remaining forms of the conjugation of reflexive verbs are introduced.

To conclude the lesson, matching games (at various levels) may help reinforce the correspondence between the subject pronoun, the reflexive pronoun and the verb ending.

A short PowerPoint presentation showing people suffering from various ailments is shown: for example, “Il a mal à la tête”, “Elle a mal à la gorge”, “Ils ont mal au genou”. This helps to reinforce the vocabulary introduced earlier in this Unit. Students are then invited to retrieve some of these examples which are written on board. Students make their own observations and classify the statements according to the preposition + article. Teacher leads students to conclude that “aux” is the plural form of “au”, “à l’” and “à la”. Examples involving the verb “aller” are also introduced: “Il va à la mairie”, “Nous allons aux Caraïbes”. A quick written exercise based on these forms is then given in class.

In a second instance, students work upon the verb venir (already introduced) + de: “Il vient de la poste”, “Elles viennent du collège”. Students will be led to conclude that « des » is the plural form of « du », “de l’” and « de la »: “Ils viennent des Etats-Unis”, “Nous venons des Seychelles”.

An exercise in which questions are matched to corresponding answers may be given. Class may be divided into two groups: one group putting the questions while the other answering them. Then the teams change tasks.

A short dictation test might help students reuse the various preposition + article forms and reinforce them.

In this unit, the teacher will enable students to revise certain French grammar points and vocabulary and assimilate new ones by creating different situations. The use of ICT in the classroom such as the IWB, PPT presentations, videos and online exercises facilitates learning and makes it more enjoyable. Pair work or group work involving graded exercises initiates students to the idea of team work and group effort between students of different abilities. Furthermore through questioning techniques, the teacher elicits linguistic responses enabling students to express themselves with increasing confidence. Intercultural diversity as well as cross-curricular aspects such as measuring the distances between towns and countries is present at all moments throughout the unit.

2. enable students to make use of the numbers from 1-100 and learn more numbers.

The teacher revises the numbers from 1 to 100 through a lottery game. Then the teacher projects a map of France on the Interactive white board showing Paris and important towns like Lyon, Marseille, Lille, and Dijon. The teacher makes students listen to a dialogue in French where French Nationals speak about the distances from Paris to these towns thus introducing numbers like deux cents (200), trois cents (300), quatre cents (400), mille (1000), deux mille cinq cent (2500) plus the word kilomètres. The teacher shows these distances on the interactive white board and asks students to look for the distance between Paris and other important towns on the map. Then students ask one another questions using these distances such as Dijon est loin ou près de Paris? Students then work out an exercise where they associate distances and towns.

The teacher can also distribute a map of Malta to the students who will find out the distance between Valletta and their hometown, say whether they are far or near from one another and the population of their hometown. As an oral activity they can ask one another questions about the distance between Malta and cities like Rome, Paris, Tunis, Madrid etc. and the population of different towns or produce a power point presentation on the topic.

Students will be able to make an oral presentation about a town in Malta showing the distance between this town and the capital city as well as the population of the town in question. (Speaking Level 7)

Students will be able to say short sentences indicating the population of a town or village in Malta and its distance from the capital city. (Speaking Level 6)

Students will be able to produce single words or short phrases using elementary vocabulary to answer questions. (Speaking Level 4)

Speaking

1. enable students to use the speaking skills they have learnt so far and to use the vocabulary and grammar they have acquired.

Using a variety of pictures/ authentic documents (printed/online), the teacher will give students the opportunity to revise the vocabulary and grammar aspects learnt in Units 2 – 5.

Documents/pictures may include a poster of a film, a plan of a town, a room, a page from someone’s diary etc.

Exercises may include associating words or phrases with pictures/documents, answering graded questions or speaking about pictures/documents.

The teacher may start by presenting the picture and giving the students some time to look at it. The teacher will then hide/cover the picture and ask questions about it. The students will be allowed to look at the picture again and are asked more detailed questions about it.

Alternatively, the teacher may opt to ask probing questions and ‘reveal’ a picture little by little using the IWB.

Students may also work in groups and prepare a set of questions about a picture/document. Each group asks the questions to another group. In this way, students will also revise the interrogative forms like: Qu’est-ce que...? Est-ce que......? Pourquoi est-ce que....? Etc.

Students will be able to produce more complex sentences when answering. They can formulate short descriptive texts about a picture/document. (Listening Level 4)

Students will be able to produce more complex sentences when answering. Students will be able to produce relatively long sentences when answering about familiar topics using the language/vocabulary learnt so far. (Speaking Level 6) and grammar they have acquired.

Students will be able to produce single words or short phrases using elementary vocabulary to answer questions. (Speaking Level 4)

Before embarking on the role play itself, the teacher will first discuss the situation with the students: who is talking and to whom? What are they talking about? Shall we use tu or vous? Then the teacher revises the vocabulary that will be used in the situation Ex: parts of the body, prepositions of place, directions; as well as the interrogative forms: Est-ce que...? Pourquoi est-ce que...? etc.

The teacher will then divide the class in pairs/groups, assign roles and allow students to practice the Role play. Afterwards, students will perform the Role play in front of their peers.

Students will be able to take part in simply structured dialogues and use the structures learnt so far to talk about familiar topics. (Speaking Level 6)

Students will be able to ask and answer basic questions about familiar topics thus creating simple dialogues. (Speaking Level 5)

Students will be able to answer very basic questions using single words or short sentences. They use gestures and body language to make meaning clearer. (Speaking Level 4)

Students will read a printed text or a text online about familiar topics such as: presentation of a family, description of a house or of a town, leisure activities, films... The length of the text and its level of difficulty may vary according to the students' ability.

The teacher will start by showing a picture/PowerPoint related to the topic of the text and ask questions about it. This will lead students to the text itself. Then, the teacher presents the text and allows some time for silent reading. The teacher asks questions to test global comprehension. After re-reading the text more attentively, the teacher will ask more detailed questions. The teacher may also invite students to write down a list of words from the text about a particular topic; Ex. Words used to describe a house, names of rooms, parts of the body etc...

Students may then work individually/in pairs/ in groups on various graded exercises such as: True/False/Not Mentioned, matching exercises, fill in the blanks, open ended questions, finding words form text, finding a suitable title for text...

Students will be able to read a slightly more complex text using context to infer meaning of unfamiliar words. (Reading Level 7)

Writing

4. help students to consolidate the writing skills they have acquired so far as well as the vocabulary and grammar learnt in order to produce a written task.

The teacher may revise the verbs and conjugations learnt so far (aller, venir, verbes –yer, verbes pronominaux, connaître etc.) by grouping students according to ability and giving five conjugations to each group. Students may be asked do a fill in exercise using the conjugations and/or write sentences using these verbs. The teacher can revise other grammatical aspects (prepositions of place, articles contractés, adjectifs démonstratifs, pronoms COD) by giving various tasks such as multiple choice and fill in exercises.

In another lesson, students are given situations about topics they have tackled so far. Students will write a short text such as an SMS, a note... or a longer text such as letters, e-mails and articles.

Teacher can first discuss the situation with students using related pictures or model texts and ask questions so that students come up with ideas, vocabulary and expressions to be used. Then, according to their ability, students are given a fill in exercise or a set of questions to serve as guidelines or simply a limited amount of vocabulary/expressions to use for their writing task. Students will write the message/short composition as classwork in groups or individually or as homework.

The teacher may evaluate in class some of the written work done by students by displaying it on the IWB and discussing it with students.

| 1. make students aware of the highlights of the region of Lorraine while instilling in them a sense of intercultural diversity. | The teacher invites the students to observe the map of administrative France projected on the IWB for a few seconds paying particular attention to the outline of the regions. Next, students are expected to guess the name of the region displayed. Some students will write the name on a piece of paper while others will circle the correct answer. The teacher can offer some hints if the need arises. Once the region of Lorraine is identified, the teacher will invite the students to focus on its position on the map of France and eventually on the map of western Europe. Students are encouraged to give the names of the regions surrounding Lorraine and later on identify the countries bordering the region.
Students of different abilities work in groups on the computers. The group leader will organize the team in such a way that all members participate in the activity. The link http://about-france.com/regions/lorraine.htm will help them fill in a work sheet containing general information questions about the region. These questions will guide the students to discover the most important aspects of Lorraine. 2. enable students to revise and discover new vocabulary pertaining to the family and to interpret a picture; teach students the skill of skimming through a text to identify the main ideas.

| http://www.francaisfacile.com/exercices/exercice-francais-2/exercice-francais-5832.php | Students are invited to watch this video-clip to revise the vocabulary learnt in Form 1 and at the same time learn new words related to the family. While watching the clip for the first time, some students are asked to jot down all the familiar words while others are expected to do a matching exercise. The second time, students will be able to take note of the new words. Others will complete an exercise with the help of pictures. Finally, the teacher will invite a number of students to sit at a table and imagine they are a family during a Christmas party. Students agree on their family roles and they will present themselves as the father, husband, mother, wife, etc making sure that all the vocabulary pertaining to the family is presented. The teacher will ask some questions to the family as regards the time of year and the town/city/country they come from. This will serve as a remote preparation for the dialogue and subsequent grammar points.

Next, students are asked to look very carefully at a picture showing a conversation between three persons of different nationalities during the festive season. After five seconds, the teacher will minimise the picture and s/he will guide students to interpret the picture using a good questioning technique. Gestures and different objects will be used as a support. Some students will give a full description of the picture while others are encouraged to answer simple questions about the picture.

At this stage, students are asked to read the dialogue silently and answer the teachers’ questions paying particular attention to the new vocabulary pertaining to the family. Pictures of family members on the following link will support this activity.

2. teach students to recognize and use the Direct Object Pronouns in the third person singular and plural.

Students are invited to fill in their own family tree which will serve as a quick revision of the vocabulary presented the previous day. Next, all students are asked to stand up and think of a present to give to one of their family members. The teacher will start off this game by holding a pencil and imagine that the pencil has been transformed into the gift s/he wishes to give as a present to his/her father or mother. S/he has to make the following statement before passing on the pencil to the next student: Je donne les chocolats à mon père. The procedure is repeated until all students have had their turn. The teacher makes sure that the correct article is used. At this stage, the teacher introduces the Direct Object Pronouns in the third person singular and plural. S/he repeats the initial statement and replaces the Direct Object by the pronoun. Je donne les chocolats à mon père. Je les donne à mon père.

Students are invited to repeat the procedure paying particular attention to the gender and number. Others are encouraged to experiment with this new language structure and to vary their discourse. Some students are asked to write their examples on the interactive whiteboard so that the four pronouns will be clearly displayed. Students can write the examples on their copybooks and written graded exercises will follow. The following online activities will consolidate this grammar point.

C’est une voiture. By means of a PowerPoint, s/he will invite students to produce sentences following this structure:

- Je prends le bus pour aller au collège.
- Je prends le bateau pour aller à Gozo.
- Je prends l’avion pour aller en France.

Students will use the verb prendre and the vocabulary related to the means of transport in a role play which they will carry out with confidence. They will use pronunciation and intonation to express moods and emotions. (Speaking Level 7)

Speaking

Students will start using grammar to adapt and substitute items of vocabulary to vary their discourse. (Reading Level 4)

Students will use direct object pronouns in simple sentences if adequate support is provided. (Speaking Level 4)
Once the students have a good grasp of the new vocabulary, the teacher will work on the conjugation of the verb prendre. A group of students will help the teacher present the different forms of the verb prendre by miming the different movements and producing the sound effects of the means of transport. The teacher will distinguish between the sounds [n], [s] and [z] within the same verb. S/he will point out that the verbs reprendre, comprendre and apprendre follow the same pattern. Students work in groups on a worksheet containing graded exercises focusing on the conjugation of the verb prendre and the vocabulary related to the means of transport. Finally, some students are requested to write a few sentences containing the verb prendre and the newly acquired vocabulary while others are asked to write a dialogue similar to the dialogue presented on the handout. Groups of students may wish to carry out the role play in front of their classmates.

The teacher introduces the lesson by means of a slideshow showing the Mediterranean countries one can visit on a cruise liner. Instead of giving the names of the countries, s/he will indicate the different countries marked by their respective flags on a map and students are encouraged to name the countries including the correct article. The teacher uses the following structures to be able to distinguish between au, aux and en.

\[ \text{J’aime le Maroc, la Tunisie, les îles grecques, l’Italie, la France et l’Espagne.} \]
\[ \text{Je prends le bateau pour aller au Maroc, en Tunisie, aux îles grecques, en Italie, en France et en Espagne.} \]

Students are asked to identify the distinction between au, aux and en. A PowerPoint will help to reinforce the grammar point. The teacher may wish to film a group of students representing the different countries. Students will be wearing traditional costumes and holding the flag of the country they are representing. Each student will present himself/herself and s/he will make the following statements:

The teacher will point out that feminine countries take en, de or d’ while the cities are preceded by the preposition à.

Following the video session, in pairs, students are asked to think of a country and produce the same statements paying particular attention to the gender and number of the country. Some students are given some flashcards as a support.

To conclude with, students are invited to fill in a worksheet containing graded exercises to reinforce the grammar point.

Students will identify ways of situating oneself and/or others in a city, country or region. They will understand language spoken at near normal speed and need little repetition. (Listening Level 7)

A quiz will follow allowing students to name the countries using the correct articles and reinforcing the use of the preposition en in front of feminine proper nouns: Le Maroc se trouve en Afrique.

This quiz may be presented on the IWB. The teacher may wish to prepare a similar quiz focusing on the grammar point in question. The activity “Pen friends” will follow. The class is divided in groups of mixed abilities. Each group is given a set of stamps representing the nationalities of pen friends coming from different countries. Students are asked to present their pen friends as follows: Nous avons trois correspondants en Europe, un au Danemark, un en Suisse et un en Autriche.

Speaking

5. enable students to present their pen friend and talk about their family and the festive season.

The teacher will present this link on the interactive whiteboard. Students are invited to listen to children of different nationalities present themselves and the type of house they live in. Some students are encouraged to choose one of the children and imagine him/her to be his/her pen friend and present him/her to the class. Others may wish to present their real pen friends. Still others are given a reading card containing the transcription of the presentations which will help them in their own presentations. These students may wish to read the given information. However, eventually, they are encouraged to produce some sentences without the written support.

Teaching Objective

Speaking and Writing

1. familiarize students with French regional specialities and other specific dishes used for celebrations throughout the year, enable students to speak and write about the main meals of the day in France.

Examples of teaching experiences and activities

Ice breaker. The teacher asks students to mention items which they associate with France. Prompts are used to direct the students into mentioning food items such as baguette, croissant, fromage and vin. Pictures of these items are placed on the board and the teacher explains that these are produced all over the country. The teacher can then draw a comparison between Maltese villages reknown for food items such as bread in Qormi, fish in Marsaxlokk, strawberries in Mgarr etc. to explain the existence of regional specialities in France. The teacher can then move on to exploring the regional specialities in France by browsing through the following sites:

Regional specialities:
- http://www.aftouch-cuisine.com/regions-de-france_l1.htm
- http://alimentation.gouv.fr/produits-regionaux

The teacher can click on a region in order to discover the following specialities: la moutarde de Dijon, les pruneaux d’Agen, les melons de Cavaillon, le champagne de Reims, les bêtises de Cambrai, les dragées de Verdun, les violette de Toulouse and cheeses such as Camembert, Roquefort, Maroilles, Munster which are named after the village or town in which they are produced. One can also include le parfum de Grasse, even though it is not a food item.

Students can be split into groups to carry out research on one of these specialities. They can then share their findings through charts, PowerPoints, classroom discussions or write ups which could be exhibited on the school website or on the notice board.

Fêtes: http://www.lepointdufle.net/fetes.htm

Indicators of Learning outcomes

Students will be able to talk with relative ease about regional specialities, their location and other dishes prepared for specific feasts. (Speaking Level 7)

Students will say a few sentences about a regional speciality. (Speaking Level 6)

Students will state which speciality is linked to which region and the dish to the feast it is associated to. (Speaking Level 5)

Students will name a few specialities found in France. (Speaking Level 4)

Students will be able to write a short paragraph about French regional specialities. (Writing Level 7)

Students will write a few sentences about a regional speciality. (Writing Level 6)

Students will fill in a cloze passage focusing on regional specialities. (Writing Level 5)

Students will match the specialities to the region where they are produced. (Writing Level 4)
Another aspect which could be explored is traditional dishes prepared for specific feasts in France. A PowerPoint can be used in order to revise the feasts covered during the previous year and then illustrate the dishes that are cooked for such celebrations. The teacher could follow up with the following activities:

- a word search to look up the various specialities and dishes
- a crossword - giving the region, town or village as clues
- a matching exercise ex. region / town and dish
- a quiz during which the teacher reads out the characteristics or ingredients of the product or dish and students have to decide what she is referring to.

Speaking and Writing

3. help students understand and use the verbs manger and boire. Then teach them the irregularity of the person nous in -ger and -cer verbs.

| Speaking and Writing | Picture interpretation. The teacher starts off by showing a picture of a school canteen and asks the students to describe the picture and focus on what the youngsters are doing. Students should be able to mention the verb manger which the teacher writes on the board. Students are asked what they notice regarding the verb, in order to move on to the concept of ER verbs and their endings. Pictures of different people eating could be used, to go through the conjugation of the whole verb. Then, one can focus on the irregularity of nous and present other GER verbs which have the same irregularity. Students could also be made aware of the CER verbs which take a ç in the nous.

Le verbe “manger”: http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=_jkecormFtM

Verbes au Présent : http://www.lepointdufle.net/present.htm

The verb boire. Students are given a text in which the verb boire is used with different persons. They are asked to identify the verb boire in its different forms and point out the ending of each person. The teacher can then introduce pictures of people drinking, in order to match the pronouns to the correct version of the verb boire.

Mirror activity: To practise, students form two rows facing each other. The first student says a phrase such as Je mange du chocolat. The student facing him/ her, repeats the same phrase, changing the person into tu and elle. Ex– |

Students should change the food item every time together with the intonation and gestures to make the activity more fun. When all the group has worked on je, tu and elle, they can form pairs to work on nous, vous and ils. The same can be done for the verb boire.

Students will be able to speak about food items using the correct article. (Speaking Level 7)

Students will be able to formulate sentences choosing the right Partitif. (Speaking Level 6)

Students will link the correct Partitif to a food item. (Speaking Level 5)

Students will refer to specific food items with their French name. (Speaking Level 4)

Students will write a short paragraph about food using the correct article. (Writing Level 7)

Students will complete cloze exercises where they have to choose between different articles. (Writing Level 6)

Students will match food items to the right Partitif (Writing Level 5)

Students will understand that the Partitif is used to refer to portions and that there are different forms to be used depending on the gender. (Writing Level 4)

A PowerPoint is used to help the students distinguish between the use of the definite, indefinite and partitive article. One could use pictures of food items which could be referred to as a whole or a portion ex un poulet / du poulet, une tarte / de la tarte, un pain / du pain, une glace/ de la glace etc. Students could be asked to point out the difference between the two. The teacher then makes use of expressions such as j`aime and je déteste etc in order to present the use of the definite article for likes and dislikes.

Speaking and Writing

6. invite students to read and understand a text regarding healthy eating and then be able to answer questions about it.

2. encourage students to identify food items and then invite them to speak about their likes and dislikes and choose food at the canteen.

The teacher presents the students with a text which speaks about healthy eating. Such a text could also introduce the vocabulary linked to the main meals of the day and make use of the Partitif to revise what would have been done in class earlier on. Apart from the usual comprehension exercises, students could be paired up and asked to tell each other what they eat for breakfast, dinner etc.

Role play: Students are grouped and asked to imagine the following scenario. A youngster visits the nutritionist for advice on healthy eating. Some students play the part of the youngster who describes his/her eating habits and other students put themselves in the nutritionist’s shoes to give instructions as to what should be eaten to lead a healthy life. The teacher guides the students into selecting the phrases to use in such a situation or else provides jumbled up phrases so that they choose the phrases uttered by the youngster and the nutritionist and then put them in order.

Healthy eating : http://alimentation.gouv.fr/a-table-les-enfants

Video clip, audio recording or power point where people state what they like and dislike. Students are asked what they understand and if possible, to repeat the phrases used. The teacher could also present a list of different statements among which the students are asked to point out the phrase used such as J`aime les fraises, J`adore le chocolat, je déteste la soupe. Expressions like Berk! and Miam! Miam! can be introduced at this point.

Students will give instructions as to what one should eat to lead a healthy lifestyle. (Speaking Level 7)

Students will speak about the main meals of the day and their likes and dislikes. (Speaking Level 6)

Students will reply orally to questions regarding a text about healthy eating. (Speaking Level 5)

Students will point out names of food items in a passage about healthy food. (Speaking Level 4)

Students will give oral instructions as to what one should eat to lead a healthy lifestyle. (Writing Level 7)

Students will write about the main meals of the day. (Writing Level 6)

Students will reply to questions about a text on healthy eating. (Writing Level 5)
The Imaginary Line: During such an activity, students can practise the above expressions. The teacher can either draw a line or ask the students to imagine that there is one. On one side of the line they have to say what they like ex. J’aime les fraises but on the other side of the line they have to state what they dislike Je n’aime pas les oranges / Je déteste les oranges. This could lead to a writing exercise. The students are invited to write a short paragraph entitled Ce que j’aime manger to explain what they like to eat and what they dislike. They could also explain what they eat for breakfast, lunch and dinner and whether they eat healthy food or not. The teacher uses a list of questions to guide them as regards the structure of their written task.

Spot the difference: The teacher puts up a picture of a fruit bowl and asks students to mention the fruit they can see on the picture. Ex Dans ce saladier, il y a des oranges, des pommes etc. After exhausting the picture, the teacher shows another picture of a similar fruit bowl having a different variety of fruit. The teacher compares the contents of the two bowls using the following phrase: Dans ce saladier, il y a des pommes mais dans l’autre saladier il n’y a pas de pommes. This enables to introduce the expression ne ... pas de. The same procedure can be used with other pictures involving different terms. Finally, the teacher could use the picture of an empty bowl, ask what they can see in the bowl and then provide them with the phrase Il n’y a rien.

Asking questions: Students could be paired up. One is given a shopping list and the other could be given a picture of a bagful of groceries. The students are asked to sit back to back and the one with the list asks the other if a specific item is present in her picture or not. Ex. Il y a du lait dans ton panier? – Non, il n’y a pas de lait.

<td>The teacher introduces the topic by showing students a Power Point about money in general to introduce certain vocabulary related to money (des euros, des centimes, des pièces de monnaie, des billets, c’est combien?, combien ça coûte?...) Graded questions will be asked to the student by the teacher to verify that they have understood. At this point, the teacher can revise certain numbers and ask children what they have noticed about how French prices are written. The teacher can also discuss the euro (e.g. the different French faces of the euro coin - intercultural). Link to the topic: from the concept of “money” the teacher then moves on to “pocket money”. This could also be done with the help of a Power Point. Students will be asked questions about their pocket money: how much pocket money they earn and when (par semaine, par mois etc.), who gives them this money, how they earn it (by helping at home etc.) and what they spend it on (buying things like CDs, games, or else save some of it etc.) Here, the teacher will pass on some vocabulary about household chores (mettre la table, sortir la poubelle, faire du babysitting, faire le lit...) as well as encourage students to express and share their likes/dislikes about particular household tasks. This can be carried out with the help of an audio or written text. The teacher will encourage students to reflect on the difference of these two words, reaching their own conclusion; using Si to answer a negative question and Oui when responding to a positive question. Use graded oral questions and written exercises to ensure that the students have understood the difference between Oui/Si and how to employ them in the right context. Depending on the ability of the students, teachers can divide the class into groups and give each group a few minutes to allow them to formulate at least 4 or more questions in both the affirmative (Oui) and the negative form (Si) and which they will later ask their classmates.</td>

4. teach students the 2nd group verbs such as finir in the Present tense, their meaning and use in both their written and spoken form.

The teacher encourages students to observe the verb in a table on the whiteboard or the book, drawing their attention to the two basic differences: fini- for the first, second and third person singular and finiss- for the first, second and third person plural. The teacher will point out that this is the model that the students will be using for all the verbs belonging to the second group.

Parts of the verb can be deleted and students asked to complete it. Alternatively, flashcards or the YouTube clip listed below can be used. Following this model, the teacher can also guide the students towards other verbs belonging to the same group like for example choisir etc. This can also be shown by means of a PowerPoint presentation.

Exercises will then be given to students to verify what they have understood. Different exercises are to be given according to ability e.g. matching / multiple choice / cloze / sentence writing...

Online exercises are recommended:

5. show students how to compare persons or things through the use of plus/moins/aussi...que + an adjective.

The teacher will first introduce the comparative using the words plus and moins whose meaning the students are probably already familiar with. Then one takes some time explaining the concept of aussi...que.

The comparative using these three words + an adjective can be passed on to the students with the use of images, a PowerPoint presentation or by comparing two students in class.

Once the students have grasped the concept of the comparative and know how to use it, the teacher can introduce the irregular comparative meilleur(e) and mieux.

The teacher can divide the students into groups according to ability and ask them to compare two items/persons of their choice like for example why they like a particular actor/singer/player more than another or why they like a particular game, mobile, chocolate etc.

At the end of the practice session some students can be invited to share the comparisons they have made with the rest of the class.

6. help students learn how to use Si to express a condition.

The students are already aware of Si being used instead of Oui when responding to a negative question.

Here, the teacher helps students to discover another meaning of the word Si in order to express a condition.

The teacher can write some phrases on the white board. The students must then sort out the different parts of the sentence. The teacher will guide students to realize that a phrase starting with Si introduces a condition and that the remaining part of the sentence expresses the result: Si tu veux de l'argent, il faut travailler!, Si tu veux manger, tu dois mettre la table!, Si tu veux inviter des copains à la maison, il faut ranger ta chambre!

The teacher can then point out that this can also be expressed by using Si + imperative: Si tu veux de l'argent, travaille!, Si tu veux manger, mets la table!, Si tu veux inviter des copains à la maison, range ta chambre!

By means of this lesson the teacher will also be able to revise the vocabulary about house chores covered in the previous lessons.

Graded exercises will then be given to students to test their knowledge. According to their ability, some students can be asked to fill in a few missing words in a sentence expressing a condition (e.g. Si tu veux manger, tu .... mettre la table!), others will be asked to complete the sentence by stipulating the whole condition (e.g. Si tu veux manger, .....). This will give rise to an interesting variety of sentences in class. Others will have progressed further and are thus asked to write the whole sentence. The correction of these exercises can be further animated by the use of the interactive whiteboard.

Students will be able to actively engage in a role play to express condition using the two forms. (Speaking Level 7)

Students will be able to use Si with ease to express a condition using both Si + present tense (il faut/ tu dois...) and Si + present + imperative. (Speaking Level 6)

Students will be able to convey very simple sentences using Si to express a condition. (Speaking Level 5)

Students will be able to recognize the word Si and its meaning in a spoken sentence. (Speaking Level 4)

Students will be able to notice that one can equally express a condition by writing a sentence placing Si in the beginning or in the second part of the phrase: Tu gagnes de l'argent si tu travailles. (Writing Level 7)

Students will be able to write down sentences using Si with ease in both forms (Si + present tense & Si + present + imperative). (Writing Level 6)

Students will be able to write a few simple sentences using Si to express a condition. (Writing Level 5)

Students will be able to grasp the meaning of Si and why or when it is used in written sentences. (Writing Level 4)

Listening

3. help students revise and consolidate their ability to conjugate and use the imperative.

The teacher can start by showing the students the recipe for making crêpes. On the interactive board the teacher projects the jumbled up instructions of the recipe. The students are asked to put the instructions of the recipe in order and then match each instruction with the correct picture. If the interactive whiteboard is not available, flashcards and pictures can be used. Once the recipe is completed, the teacher encourages the students to analyse the verbs used in the recipe. All the verbs should be conjugated in the imperative form. The teacher can use a PowerPoint presentation or the following links to revise the imperative form:

- http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=_9qk6uonKNE
- http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=8zVUMw_9bus

The teacher can verify that the students have understood how to conjugate the imperative form by working out some exercises such as the following:

- http://www.lepointdufle.net/p/imeratif.htm

Game: Faire de la gymnastique After a quick revision of the parts of the body, the teacher gives orders to the students such as levez-vous, tournez la tête à gauche, rentrez le ventre, touchez vos pieds avec vos mains, levez les bras ...

At this point the students can also listen to a dialogue or a song (such as the song Fais pas ci, fais pas ça de Jacques Dutronc) where the imperative form is used. Different exercises such as the completion of a text with the conjugation of the imperative can be given to the students. The exercises should cater for students with different abilities.

Speaking

2. introduce the students to the conjugation and use of the verbs mettre, permettre ... in the present tense.

The teacher presents a short text to the students encouraging them to read it carefully and highlight all the sentences where the verb mettre is used. These sentences will help the students to come up with the conjugation of the verb mettre in the present tense. The teacher will familiarise the students with the conjugation of this verb through a PowerPoint or a video clip such as the following:

- http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=knKaDEntn28

Students will be able to identify and distinguish between an order or a phrase in the imperative form used in different contexts. (Listening Level 7)

Students will be able to understand a simple order or a phrase in the imperative form. (Listening Level 6)

Students will need some repetition so as to understand an order in the imperative form. (Listening Level 5)

Students will need more repetition, prompting, body language and gestures in order to be able to understand an order in the imperative form. (Listening Level 4)
3. help students revise and consolidate their ability to conjugate and use the imperative.

The teacher puts into groups students of different abilities and assigns a verb such as permettre, remettre ... to each group. Following the model of the verb mettre the group will conjugate the verb given, in the present tense. A student from each group is asked to conjugate the verb given in the present tense on the interactive whiteboard. This activity can also be done using flashcards. Once the teacher is sure that the students know how to conjugate these verbs, he/she can introduce the imperative form of the same verbs. A quick revision of the imperative might be necessary.

Group work game: The class is divided into groups of mixed abilities. Team A gives an order to Team B by using the verb mettre, for example: Mettez vos mains sur la table or Mets le livre de français sur ta tête, Mettez-vous à côté du tableau... The order can be given to the whole team or to a selected student within the team. A point is assigned to the team that gives out the order in correct French and another point is allotted to the team that carries out the order correctly. Students can then be given an exercise from their workbook to practise the conjugation of the imperative of the verbs mettre, permettre ...

Reading

4. enable students to familiarise themselves with the conjugation of the passé composé (verbs that take avoir as auxiliary).

The students could be presented with a simple text in the present tense. After careful analysis of the content, the students are given the same text in the past tense. Students are encouraged to read the second text carefully and underlined the verbs in order to highlight the differences between the two tenses.

The teacher can test the students’ recognition of the passé composé with an activity using the interactive whiteboard. The students are shown various sentences, some in the present tense and others in the past tense. In turn the students will come out and drag a sentence under the right column choosing between the present tense and the passé composé.

Then the teacher introduces the passé composé (only the regular verbs that take avoir as auxiliary). The teacher explains this tense in detail and presents the students with several examples. In order to consolidate this grammar point the teacher can propose the following online activities or other similar activities.

Students will recognise the passé composé, understand its formation and be able to distinguish its use from other tenses. (Reading Level 7)

Students will recognise the passé composé and start familiarising with its formation. (Reading Level 6)

Students will start familiarising themselves with the passé composé. (Reading Level 5)

Students will recognise the passé composé from the present tense. (Reading Level 4)
Speaking

4. enable students to familiarise themselves with the conjugation of the passé composé (verbs that take avoir as auxiliary), and its use for a past action.

| Speaking | Group work activity: To further reinforce the conjugation of the -er, -ir and -re regular verbs in the passé composé. Divide the students in three groups. The first group is asked to work on the verb jouer, the second group on the verb finir and the third group on the verb vendre. Each group has to match the subject pronoun with the conjugated verb in the passé composé. The following sites can be used: http://atschool.eduweb.co.uk/rgshiwc/school/curric/French/Year8Revision/Yr8_Begin_Perfect_Tense/Index.htm

Role Play: Qu’est-ce que Paul a fait? The students have to be in pairs. Student A is given Paul’s Week Schedule A and student B is given Paul’s Week Schedule B. Each schedule is not complete and the students need each other’s information to complete the schedule. Thus student A has to ask questions to student B to retrieve information and vice versa, using the passé composé.
Example - Student A: Qu’est-ce que Paul a fait mardi matin?
Student B: Il a travaillé à la bibliothèque.

Writing

4. enable students to familiarise themselves with the conjugation of the passé composé (verbs that take avoir as auxiliary), and its use for a past action.

| Writing | The teacher presents students with a short text or story using the passé composé in both the affirmative and negative forms. After reading the text carefully, the students are asked to underline all the verbs in the passé composé. Subsequently the students are encouraged to come to the board and write down all the sentences under the right category: affirmative sentences or negative sentences. The sentences in the negative form are analysed.
Game: The teacher could continue with the following group work activity. Students of mixed ability are grouped together. Each group is given four sets of flashcards, each containing a verb in the passé composé and the other words that form a sentence. Students are asked to put the words in the correct order. All the sentences have to be in the negative. The group that finishes the task first, will win the game. All the sentences are analysed and discussed. The use of the negative is highlighted. |
| --- | Students will form complex sentences using the passé compose. (Writing Level 7)
Students will be able to write good sentences using the passé composé. (Writing Level 6)
Students will be able to write simple sentences in the passé composé with the help of some key words. (Writing Level 5)
Students will be able to write simple sentences in the passé composé with the help of some key words. (Writing Level 5) |
The teacher can then show the students a video-clip such as the following (without the audio): http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=9_FpZxsao-Ng

In pairs, the students will follow closely the short clip and write down some of the actions they notice – the actions have to be written in the passé composé. The short clip shows an acted out version of the poem Déjeuner du matin by Jacques Prévert. Example: Il a bu le café... Each pair of students will report back what they have written. Next the teacher will give the students’ the poem to be discussed and the verbs analysed. Finally the students can watch the clip again and listen to the poem being read out. For homework, the students can be asked to change all the passé composé sentences in the poem to the negative form.

Speaking

4. enable students to familiarise themselves with the conjugation of the passé composé (verbs that take avoir as auxiliary), and its use for a past action.

The teacher could start off by showing the students a picture of two girls talking. Students are encouraged to describe the picture and try to figure out the situation which is depicted in the picture.

At this point the students can read out a dialogue that corresponds to the picture. An audio of such a dialogue can be found in the following site:

At this point the students should be more familiar with the theme: Le weekend thus the following online exercise can be given. This exercise requires the students to conjugate the verb in the passé composé. Each sentence depicts an action that took place in the previous weekend:

<td>In this last unit the teacher will introduce the position of the COD in different sentences. Students will learn how to recognise and use the COD in both written and oral work. Different types of exercises, both oral and written, and the use of ICT in such exercises, will help students in recognising, using and reinforcing their good use of the COD in different situations. Such exercises should incorporate all the 4 strands of learning and should be graded, so as to create situations where students move from the known to the unknown and where all students can experience improvement. Pair work and group work will also help to support peer learning/teaching. In this last unit, teachers are also expected to provide students with different activities based on the four strands in order to reinforce and revise the material taught during the year, thus preparing them for exams. This revision can also be carried out through the use of ICT, individual work and group/pair work. Here, teachers can also make use of previous past papers, thus presenting students with a specimen example of their exam paper. In this way students can practice the skills that they need during exam situations.</td>
