Inside the Giant’s bag

1. ‘Where are we?’ Stephen’s voice sounded shaky and his face was white. Colette looked round at the blue canvas walls of their prison. She shuddered remembering the fat pink tentacles that had put her there.

2. ‘I think we’re in a giant’s bag,’ she whispered back. The next second they heard a very loud voice. ‘Beely iggly plop,’ it said and the tentacles appeared above them, with Poppy in their grip.

3. Poppy was laughing. ‘Big girl do it again,’ she said as the giant hand released her. She seemed to think this was some kind of glorious fairground ride.

4. ‘It’s not a girl, it’s a giant,’ Stephen snapped at her. ‘It’s probably going to eat us.’ But Poppy just repeated. ‘Big girl,’ and started bouncing on the cushions which covered the floor of the bag. Then the canvas ceiling came down. ‘All dark,’ complained Poppy.

5. Colette felt sick with fear but she managed to find her voice, and shouted, ‘Stop! Let us out! Let us out!’

6. ‘It can’t understand you. Didn’t you hear it? She speaks a different language.’ Stephen sounded angry.

7. A tremendous jolt threw them up into the air and down again. As the three of them rolled helplessly about on the cushions, Poppy giggled again. However, Colette and Stephen were silent. They both knew what was happening. The giant was on the move. ‘Mum! Dad! Help!’ yelled Colette but without much hope.

8. A sudden swoop and a bump and the jolting stopped. Their dark ceiling was off again, and light streamed in. The hand came down. It was putting something in. It was a long washing line, complete with pegged-out clothes, towels and sheets. A sheet landed on top of Colette and, by the time she had struggled free, the bag was dark. Then the bumpy journey had begun again.

9. Poppy, delighted with the new and grown-up toy, started unfastening the clothes and gathering the pegs in a corner of the bag.

10. ‘I wish I could get us out of here … I know! Give me one of those clothes pegs, Poppy,’ said Stephen. Poppy handed him one. Stephen started picking away with it at a corner in the bottom of the bag as they jolted along. He could feel a little hole, where the stitching had come loose. He wanted to make it bigger so that they could escape if the giant would put the bag down again. When it was big enough to look through he lay on his tummy and put his eye to the hole. ‘Oh no,’ he said.

11. ‘What is it?’ asked Colette.

12. ‘You’d better have a look,’ he said.

13. So Colette looked through the hole and was overcome with dizziness and fear. They were going up a beanstalk!

F. Read how Margot made a water clock.
(10 marks)

First she used a bradawl to make a small hole in the bottom of a pie dish. Then she placed a drinking straw in the bottom of a plastic tumbler. Soon after she put the pie dish on top of the plastic tumbler, she poured water from a jug into it. As the water dripped into the tumbler she marked the level at ten-minute intervals. After half an hour she had three marks up the side of the tumbler. She emptied out the water and refilled the pie dish to time her eggs for breakfast.

Now, use the information in the paragraph to complete the instructions below. The first one has been done for you.

MAKE A WATER CLOCK

You will need:

- a bradawl
- a drinking straw
- a marker
- an aluminium pie dish
- a large plastic tumbler
- a pair of scissors
- a jug filled with water

1. Use the bradawl to make a small hole in the bottom of the pie dish. The smaller the hole, the longer your water clock will run.

2. Place a drinking straw in the bottom of a plastic tumbler. It will act as a pointer as the water level rises. Cut the straw with a pair of scissors if it is too long.

3. Place the pie dish on top of the plastic tumbler. Make sure the hole in the pie dish is over the centre of the tumbler.

4. Pour water from the jug into the pie dish. Keep adding water until the dish is full. As soon as water starts to fall into the tumbler, note the time on your watch.

5. As the water falls into the tumbler, mark every ten minutes. After half an hour you have three marks up the side of the tumbler.

6. Pour out the water, refill the pie dish and you can use your water clock to measure time passing.
A Mr Rubbish Mood

Section One: Saving the rainforest

Judy woke up early when it was still dark outside. She found her torch and notebook. Then she tiptoed downstairs to the kitchen. Judy wanted to make the world a better place before breakfast. She was in a Mr Rubbish mood. Mr Rubbish was the Good Garbage Gremlin in Stink’s comic book, who built his house out of cartons and bottles. He recycled everything even lollipop sticks. He never used anything from the rainforest.

‘Hmm … things that come from the rainforest. That would be a good place to start,’ thought Judy. Rubber came from the rainforest and also chocolate, spices, chewing gum and things like perfume. Judy collected things from around the house and piled them on the kitchen table. Among other things there were chocolate bars, the chocolate dessert, her dad’s coffee beans, the rubber toilet plunger, gum from Stink’s gumball machine, and her mother’s lipstick from the bottom of her purse.

When her family came into the kitchen, Judy said, ‘We’re not going to use these things any more. It’s all from the rainforest. They cut down too many trees to grow coffee and give us make-up and chewing gum. The Earth is our home. We have to take action to save it. We won’t need all these things.’

‘I need gum!’ yelled Stink. ‘Give me back my gum!’
Dad put the chocolate dessert back in the cupboard. Mum took the toilet plunger off the kitchen table and headed for the bathroom.

Section Two: The three Rs

Judy Moody decided to show her family just how much they hurt the planet. Every time someone threw something away, she would write it down. She got her notebook and looked in the rubbish bin. She wrote down a list.

‘Stink! You shouldn’t throw gooey old porridge in the rubbish!’ Judy said.
‘Dad! Tell her to stop spying on me,’ said her brother.
‘I’m a Garbage Detective,’ said Judy. ‘If you want to learn what to recycle, you have to get to know your rubbish. Hasn’t anybody in this family ever heard of the three Rs?’
‘Which three Rs?’ asked Dad.
‘Reduce. Reuse. Recycle,’ said Judy. ‘Look at all the things we throw away!’
‘We recycle all our glasses and tins,’ said Mum.
‘And newspapers,’ Dad said.
‘But what about this?’ said Judy, picking up a plastic bag. ‘This bag could carry a library book.’
‘What’s so great about eggshells?’ asked Stink. ‘And smelly old ground-up coffee?’
‘You can use them to feed plants. Or make compost.’

‘Judy you’re not even ready for school yet. Let’s talk about this later,’ said Dad. ‘It’s time to get dressed.’
It was no use. Nobody listened to her. Judy trudged upstairs, feeling like a sloth without a tree.
‘I won’t wear lipstick today if it’ll make you feel better,’ Mum called up the stairs.
‘And I’ll only drink half a cup of coffee,’ Dad said.
However, Judy could hardly hear them over the grinding of the rainforest coffee beans. She thought that her family certainly knew how to ruin a perfectly good Mr Rubbish mood.
