Puppets and Puppet Shows

1. Inside the Puppet Theatre the puppets sit on shelves or lie curled up in boxes. Every puppet has a different character. There are poor children, kings and wicked stepmothers. There are giants and animals of every kind.

2. The puppet theatre is an old place with wooden staircases and tiny rooms. There is a small, simple stage.

3. Puppets work in different ways. The body of a string puppet is made of wood. There are joints at its neck, its elbow and so on. These are the parts of the puppet that move when the puppeteer pulls on the strings.

4. Rod puppets have long rods. The long rods move the arms and the head. There are no rods to move the legs or feet.

5. Puppeteers wear glove puppets on their hands and move them with fingers. Puppets like this get torn easily, so they often need repairing.

6. Shadow puppets are different from other puppets. You move them in front of a bright light and make shadows on a screen.

7. Every month the puppet theatre puts on a new show. A team of people work together. The director is the person in charge. The writer thinks about the story and works on the play script. The designers plan what the stage and puppets will look like. The puppet makers begin work on the puppets.

8. The puppeteers plan how to move the puppets. They rehearse for a week before the show opens. Everything has to work together – the stage area with the props, the puppets, the lights, and the music. Everyone works hard until it all looks and sounds just right.

9. About an hour before the show, the puppeteers check that the puppets and props, the other objects used on stage, are ready.

10. Soon the audience arrives. The children talk and laugh. Then, suddenly, the lights go out and the show starts.

11. The children enjoy going to the Puppet Theatre. They like to see the puppet shows.

Read the following passage carefully.

Ben’s best friend

Ben’s home was a lighthouse. He liked living there, but it was a bit lonely. No one lived nearby.

Every day, at sunset, Ben’s Dad turned on the light at the top of the lighthouse. The light warned ships out at sea not to sail too close to the shore.

On bad days the wind howled and the sea turned from blue to grey. Ben knew what could happen to ships at sea. Sometimes he saw bits of broken ships washed up on the sharp rocks. He was afraid of the sea.

Once a week, Dad drove to the town to buy groceries. One day he had a wonderful surprise. In the back of the truck there was a white dog.

“She needs a friend,” Dad told Ben. Ben lifted the dog out of the truck. She licked him on the nose.

“I’ll call you Licky,” Ben told her.

A little way from the lighthouse was a small bay. Licky went on walks with Ben along the sandy beach.

One day she chased a sea gull into the sea. Ben was building a sandcastle. He looked up. All he could see was her bobbing white head!

Ben knew how strong the sea was, but he had to help Licky. She was his best friend. He ran into the waves.

Suddenly, a big wave pushed him over. Ben tried to get up, but another wave pushed him down again.

Then, Licky’s white head was bobbing close to Ben. He held on to her neck. Her paws paddled strongly through the water. Soon Ben’s feet were on sand again. His legs felt weak. Then she licked him on the nose.
