SECTION A – DRAMA  25 MARKS

Choose ONE question from this section.

MACBETH

1. Read the passage below and answer the questions that follow:

Lady Macbeth: Glamis thou art, and Cawdor; and shalt be
What thou art promised: yet do I fear thy nature;
It is too full o' the milk of human kindness
To catch the nearest way: thou wouldst be great;
Art not without ambition, but without
The illness should attend it: what thou wouldst highly,
That wouldst thou holily; wouldst not play false,
And yet wouldst wrongly win: thou'ldst have, great Glamis,
That which cries 'Thus thou must do, if thou have it;
And that which rather thou dost fear to do
Than wishest should be undone.' Hie thee hither,
That I may pour my spirits in thine ear;
And chastise with the valour of my tongue
All that impedes thee from the golden round,
Which fate and metaphysical aid doth seem
To have thee crown'd withal.

THE MERCHANT OF VENICE

1. Read the passage below and answer the questions that follow:

   Bassanio:
   In Belmont is a lady richly left;
   And she is fair, and, fairer than that word,
   Of wondrous virtues: sometimes from her eyes
   I did receive fair speechless messages:
   Her name is Portia, nothing undervalued
   To Cato's daughter, Brutus' Portia:
   Nor is the wide world ignorant of her worth,
   For the four winds blow in from every coast
   Renowned suitors, and her sunny locks
   Hang on her temples like a golden fleece;
   Which makes her seat of Belmont Colchos' strand,
   And many Jasons come in quest of her.
   O my Antonio, had I but the means
   To hold a rival place with one of them,
   I have a mind presages me such thrift,
   That I should questionless be fortunate!

   Antonio:
   Thou know'st that all my fortunes are at sea;
   Neither have I money nor commodity
   To raise a present sum: therefore go forth;
   Try what my credit can in Venice do:
   That shall be rack'd, even to the uttermost,
   To furnish thee to Belmont, to fair Portia.

   (a) According to the extract, say in your own words what makes Bassanio think that he will be welcomed by Portia?

   (b) What do we learn of Portia’s character from this extract and from your knowledge of the play The Merchant of Venice?

TWELFTH NIGHT

Viola:

I prithee, and I'll pay thee bounteously,
Conceal me what I am, and be my aid
For such disguise as haply shall become
The form of my intent. I'll serve this duke.
Thou shall present me as an eunuch to him.
It may be worth thy pains, for I can sing
And speak to him in many sorts of music
That will allow me very worth his service.
What else may hap to time I will commit.
Only shape thou thy silence to my wit.

Section D  UNPREPARED TEXT

Read the following extract carefully.

This passage is taken from a novel. In this story, Guy Montag is a fireman. His job is to burn books, which are forbidden, as they are considered to be the source of all unhappiness. Armed with a lethal weapon he is ready to track down those criminals who defy society by preserving and reading books.

5 It was a pleasure to burn.

It was a special pleasure to see things eaten, to see things blackened and changed. With the brass nozzle in his fists, with this great python spitting its venomous kerosene upon the world, the blood pounded in his head, and his hands were the hands of some amazing conductor playing all the symphonies of blazing and burning to bring down the tatters and charcoal ruins of history. With his symbolic helmet numbered 451 on his stolid head, and his eyes all orange flame with the thought of what came next, he flicked the igniter and the house jumped up in a gorging fire that burned the evening sky red and yellow and black. He strode in a swarm of fireflies. He wanted above all, like the old joke, to shove a marshmallow on a stick in the furnace, while the flapping pigeon-winged books died on the porch and lawn of the house - while the books went up in sparkling whirls and blew away on a wind turned dark with burning.

Montag grinned the fierce grin of all men singed and driven back by flame.

He knew that when he returned to the firehouse, he might wink at himself, a minstrel man, burnt corked, in the mirror. Later, going to sleep, he would feel the fiery smile gripped by his face muscles, in the dark. It never went away, that smile, it never ever went away, as long as he remembered.
