HISTORY (Option)
School Syllabus for Year 10

Starting September 2023
List of Subject Foci in Year 10

The learning outcomes are structured into the following subject foci:

Analysing and interpreting historical evidence
1. Analysing and interpreting historical evidence

European and International History
2. Revolutions and Nationalism in Europe (1789-1914)

Maltese History
5. The British Period (1798-1921)
6. Malta’s social and economic development since 1800

Maltese and European History
9. Europe and Malta in the Two World Wars

School-Based Assessment modes (Paper I)
1. Illustrated research essay: [Level 1–2: 200-300-word essay; Level 2–3: 300 to 400-word essay]
2. Primary source investigation: Source document/s and worksheet with questions set proportionally at Level 1, 2 and 3
3. Site visit investigation: [Level 1–2: 200-300-word essay; Level 2–3: 300 to 400-word essay]
4. Thematic timeline: [Level 1–2: 100-150 text word count; Level 2–3: 150 to 200 text word count]
5. Digital presentation: [Level 1: Up to 6 slides; Level 2: 7–8 slides; Level 3: 9–10 slides]

The main points are:
- The Spinning Jenny;
- The Flying Shuttle;
- The steam engine;
- The factory mill.

The main points are:
- Water/steam powered pumps removed water that flooded the coal mines;
- The flying shuttle or weaving made easy;
- The Spinning Jenny increased wool mills productivity;
- The power loom was a water or steam powered machine that turned cotton thread into fabric;
- The steam engine increased machine power and was applied to factories, ships and railways;
- The cotton gin made cotton production boom;
- The blast furnace reached very high temperatures for the smelting of metals such as iron and steel;
- The telegraph made long-distance; communication possible (the Morse Code);
- The dynamite replaced gunpowder as an explosive substance;
- Photography made real-world images possible for the first time;
- The typewriter made writing faster and clearer than handwriting;
- The electric generator paved the way for the invention of electricity;
- The internal combustion engine paved the way for the automobile;
- The modern factory; first with water-powered mills and then with steam-powered engines.

Refer to and expand on points mentioned in LEVEL 2 and on the following subsequent inventions of the period.
- The water pump;
- The railway;
- The telegraph;
- The dynamite;
- The typewriter;
- The sewing machine;
- The light bulb;
- The automobile.

<td>3.3j Compare and contrast the early phase of the Industrial Revolution in Britain and in Germany up to 1914.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

The main causes are:
- Industrial Revolution began about a century later in Germany than it did in England;
- By 1900 Britain producing more coal while Germany was producing more steel;
- The Zollverein helped Germany catch up with Britain and France in railway tracks by 1870;
- Germany was economically weaker before the Industrial Revolution because it was divided in many states while Britain was a unified nation-state;
- Germany outdid Britain in chemical and electrical innovation;
- Britain relied on her vast colonies for raw materials and markets for her industries;
- Until the 1880s, Germany had no colonies and had to import raw materials for her industries;
- Germany used most of her industrial products to strength the army and the navy.

The main points are:
Before unification (1871):
- The German Confederation left Germany divided;
- German Confederation still dominated by Austria which was economically more backward than Prussia;
- Prussia set up the Zollverein to unify Germany economically;
- Germany had less railway tracks than Britain and France but together.

After unification (1871):
- Under Prussian leadership, the road was now open for Germany to become a major world economic power;
- Germany excelled in the chemical and electrical industries which spearheaded the ‘Second’ Industrial Revolution after 1870;
- Krupp’s factories in Essen produced steel and armaments for Germany’s military build-up;
- By 1900, Germany surpassed Britain in industrial production and sales.

The main points are:
- The early factories: 1771: Richard Arkwright’s steam-powered cotton mill;
- Production of coal and iron;
- The steam engine;
- The cotton and textile industries;
- The first railway tracks: 1825: Stockton-Darlington; 1830: Liverpool-Manchester.

Germany:
- 1859: Alfred Krupp becomes Prussia’s main arms manufacturer;
- 1834: The setting up of the Zollverein;
- The first railway track: 1834: Fürth-Nuremberg (Bavaria);
- 1866: Werner Siemens invented the electric dynamo.

Germany had the advantage of learning from the mistakes of Britain’s early industrial Revolution:
- Applying electrical power to industry instead of steam power;
- Investing in chemical industries instead of cotton and textile industries;

<td>3.3i Discuss the positive and/or negative consequences brought about by developments of the Industrial Revolution. transport, weaponry, industrial production.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

The main points are:
Transport:
- Larger and faster trains and ships;
- Cargo ships using coal and steam instead of sail;
- Application of the automobile: cargo trucks, taxi service, police, fire-engines, ambulances;
- The invention of the early aircraft (bi-plane);

Weaponry:
- Larger and more accurate weapons (breech-loading guns, machine guns, rifle);
- Iron clads, dreadnaughts and submarines;
- Bi-plane fighter aircraft used during World War I;

Industrial production:
- Large industrial centres (e.g., Manchester);
- Interchangeable parts (e.g., weapons, machines etc.)
- The production belt/assembly line;
- Mass production of goods at affordable prices.

Transport: the main positive and negative points are:
- Faster, safer and more comfortable transport;
- New skilled jobs connected with the new inventions (e.g., railway personnel, engineers, technicians, etc.);
- Infrastructural development (e.g., tunnels, bridges, railway stations, tramways, electrical cables, etc.);

Weaponry: the main positive and negative points are:
- Use of more accurate and deadly weapons (e.g., canons, the machine gun, automatic rifle; fighter bi-plane);
- Sharp increase in casualties in time of war;
- Bombardment of cities in time of war.

Industrial production: the positive and negative points are:
- More affordable prices for the working classes;
- Technological innovations applied to industry;
- Increase of pollution by the burning of fossil fuel;
- Use of heavy machinery led to increase in fatal accidents on the work place;
- Completion for international markets and colonialism;
- Setting up of international cartels to control production and prices;
- Strain on the earth's natural resources.

Refer to and expand on the points mentioned in LEVEL 2.

<td>3.3m Explain the positive and/or negative effects of the Industrial Revolution in 19th-century Europe.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

The main positive effects are:
- Economic development;
- The emergence of machines in agriculture and industry;
- Improved communication and transport;
- Improved sanitation and medical care;
- Gradual improvement in standard of living;
- New skilled jobs;
- Factory Laws regulating working conditions of women and children.

The main negative effects are:
- Widened the gap between the upper and the working classes;
- Rapid and haphazard urbanisation;
- Created a polluted environment (e.g., rivers, canals, industrial waste, fossil fuels);
- Sanitation problems in the cities (slums, sewage, water supply, epidemics, etc.);
- Mass migration from rural to urban centres.

The main positive points are:
- Improvement in living standards;
- More affordable prices for the working classes;
- Faster, safer and more comfortable transport;
- New skilled jobs connected with the new inventions;
- Technological innovations applied to industry (e.g., the factory system; the production belt, automation);
- Scientific inventions applied to medicine and health (e.g., anesthetic, inoculation, vaccination etc.);
- Humanitarian legislation (e.g., The Factory Act of 1833).

The main negative points are:
- Increase of pollution by the burning of fossil fuel;
- Use of more deadly weapons in wars;
- Increase in delinquency and crime in industrial cities;
- Working class families lived in substandard dwellings;
- Use of heavy machinery led to increase in fatal accidents on the work place;
- Completion for international markets led to a new surge to colonialism;
- Setting up of cartels to control production and prices.
- Exploitation of children through child labour;
- Increase in consumption led to a strain on the earth’s natural resources.

Refer to and expand on the points listed in LEVEL 1 and 2.

  Pact of Plombières; The Austro-Italian War; the expedition of the Red Shirts. | 3.3p Discuss the motives and decisions taken by Cavour and/or Garibaldi aimed at achieving Italian unification.
  Pact of Plombières; The Austro-Italian War; the expedition of the Red Shirts. |

The main points are:
- Mazzini: journalist; republican political writer; revolutionary activist; founder of Young Italy movement; years in exile in England and Switzerland; one of the triumvirate of Roman Republic of 1849.
- Cavour: diplomat; statesman; Prime Minister of Sardinia; monarchist; architect of the Italian Unification between 1852-1861; alliance with Napoleon III at the Secret Pact of Plombières (1858); the Austro-Italian War (1859-1860).
- Garibaldi: Italian patriot and republican revolutionary leader; general; support to the Roman Republic of 1849; lead the Red Shirts campaign in southern Italy (1860); his attempts to wrestle Rome from the Pope.

The main points are:
- Why Mazzini abandoned the Carbonari and set up Young Italy?
- Why Mazzini preferred a republican to a monarchist united Italy?
- Why was Mazzini disillusioned by what came out of a united Italy after 1861?
- Why did Cavour modernize the administration and the economy of Sardinia?
- Why did Cavour participate in the Crimean War?
- Why did Cavour seek an alliance with Napoleon?
- Why did Garibaldi plan the campaign of the Red Shirts against the Bourbons of Naples and Sicily?
- Why did Garibaldi try to wrestle Rome from the Pope after 1861?

The main points are:
- The motives of Cavour to bring about the Secret Pact of Plombières with Napoleon III:
  - Italy could not defeat Austria by herself;
  - Napoleon III wanted to revenge France’s defeat in 1815;
  - Cavour would have the excuse to provoke a war against Austria being seen as the aggressor.
- The motives of Garibaldi to lead a campaign against the Bourbons of Naples and Sicily:
  - the Bourbons were allies of the Pope and the Austrians;
  - The Bourbons controlled nearly half of the Italian peninsula;
  - it was the most backward of all of the Italian states.
- The motives of Cavour to stop Garibaldi from attacking Rome in 1860:
  - Cavour feared French and Austrian intervention against the new Kingdom of Italy;
  - He feared that Garibaldi might set up a rival republican government in Rome.

Refer to the map of the German Confederation:
- The main points are:
  - Map of the German Confederation; https://upload.wikimedia.org/wikipedia/commons/6/6c/Deutscher_Bund.png
  - Years of existence: 1815-1867;
  - Consisted of 39 German states;
  - The two principal states in the Confederation: Prussia and Austria;
  - The Presidency was held by Metternich as Chancellor of Austria;
  - The Diet met at Frankfurt and consisted of the German Princes or their representatives;
  - The Zollverein was set up by Prussia in 1834 as a customs union for the German states;
  - The Metternich’s System spread among most of the German states.

Refer to the points in LEVEL 1, together with the following:
- It was set up by the Congress of Vienna in 1815;
- It ended when Prussia replaced it with the North German Confederation in 1867;
- The rivalry between Austria and Prussia;
- The exclusion of Austria from the Zollverein;
- Metternich’s power over the Confederation until his resignation in 1848;
- Laws were enacted by the Diet of the Confederation;
- The German Federal Army was composed by regiments from all the German states according to their population size.

Refer to the relevant points in LEVEL1 and 2, together with the following:
- Prussia and Austria cooperated as part of the Quadruple Alliance during the Congress System (1815-1824);
- Prussia’s motives to set up the Zollverein and exclude Austria from joining it;
- Internally it was weakened by the forces of liberalism, nationalism which caused to revolutionary waves in 1830 and 1848;
- Prussia and Austria cooperated during the Frankfurt Parliament of 1848-1849;
- The Agreement of Olmütz (1850): Prussia abandoned the Erfurt Union and accepted Austrian leadership of the Confederation;
- Most historians agree that the Confederation was weak, ineffective and an obstacle German unification. However, it was designed to be weak, as it served the interests of the European Great Powers, especially its own member-states Austria and Prussia.

</table>

The main causes are:
- Growing political and social discontent;
- News of the 1848 Revolution in Paris;
- March 15: violent rioting in Berlin;
- Frederick William IV of Prussia gave in to popular demands;
- May 18: the Frankfurt Assembly held its first session to draft the Frankfurt Constitution.

The main consequences are:
- In the end, the revolutions turned out to be unsuccessful;
- Frederick William IV of Prussia refused the title of German Emperor from the people;
- The Frankfurt Parliament was dissolved by the Prussian army;
- The Princes repressed the uprisings by military force;
- Many revolutionary leaders went into exile;

Refer to the points in LEVEL 1, together with the following:

Causes:
-rowing discontent against the political and social order imposed by the Congress of Vienna;
- News of the February Revolution against Louis Philippe in Paris reached discontented liberals, and radical workers;
- The first uprisings began in Baden in March;
- Frederick William IV of Prussia promised a constitution, a parliament, and his support for German unification;
- The Frankfurt Parliament proclaimed a German Empire based on the principles of parliamentary democracy;

Consequences:
- Frederick William refused to receive the German Imperial Crown 'from the gutter';
- The Prussian and Austrian delegates abandoned the Frankfurt Parliament;
- The German Confederation was restored by the Agreement of Olmütz (1850);
- The achievements of the revolutionaries were reversed in all of the German states and by 1851.

The main points for their failure:
- The revolutions gradually fizzled out because of a number of reasons:
- The divisions at the Frankfurt Assembly between conflicting factions and social classes rendered it impossible for its members to form coalitions and push for specific goals;
- Unable to agree in fundamental principles, the Frankfurt Assembly ending up in protracted and useless debating.
- The liberals broke ranks with the radicals;
- The liberals lacked the support of the masses;
- The overwhelming strength of the conservative forces (i.e., the Monarchy, the aristocracy and the army).
- By late 1848 the Prussian Junkers and generals had regained power in Berlin; The Prussian army recaptured Berlin for the King;
- In November the King dissolved the new Prussian Parliament and replaced it with a constitution maintaining supreme authority in his own hands;
- At some point during the revolution the liberals joined the conservative against radicals because they opposed radical social reform.
- The conservative forces who were waiting for right time to initiate a counter-revolution.

The main points are:
- The army reforms pushed forward by Bismarck;
- The Danish War over Schleswig-Holstein;
- The Austro-Prussian War: the exclusion of Austria from German affairs;
- The North German Confederation under Prussian leadership (1867-1871);
- The Franco-Prussian War and the defeat of France: the annexation of Alsace-Lorraine and the proclamation of the German Empire at Versailles.

The main points are:
- Army reforms passed against the liberal majority in the Prussian Reichstag;
- The Convention of Gastein (1865) over the joint administration of Schleswig-Holstein by Prussia and Austria;
- the lenient Peace Treaty of Pressburg (1866) imposed over Austria;
- The meeting at Biarritz and Napoleon III’s compensation in Luxembourg and Belgium;
- The succession to the Spanish throne (1870) and the Bismarck’s manipulation of the Ems Telegram;
- The humiliating Treaty of Frankfurt over France in 1871;

The main points are:
- The Schleswig-Holstein War (1864) against Denmark: served as a test of the new Prussian army reforms and a cause for a future quarrel with Austria;
- The Seven Weeks War 1866 against Austria: excluded Austria from German affairs and made Prussia the sole leading power in Germany;
- The incident of the Hohenzollern candidate to the Spanish throne and the manipulation of the Ems telegram;
- The Franco-Prussian War: defeat, humiliation and occupation of France; the completion of German unification; the proclamation of the German Empire at Versailles.

The main facts about the Unification of Italy are:
- The Italian Risorgimento;
- Mazzini and Young Italy;
- Austria dominated northern Italy;
- The leadership of Piedmont under Cavour;
- Napoleon III supported the Italian cause;
- Garibaldi and the Red Shirts campaign.

The main facts about the Unification of Germany are:
- Austria led the German Confederation;
- Rivalry between Austria and Prussia;
- The Zollverein as a customs union;
- The leadership of Prussia under Bismarck;
- Bismarck’s wars of unification against Denmark, Austria and France.

Similarities:
- French occupation and Napoleon caused the birth of national movement in Italy and Germany;
- The Congress of Vienna confirmed the division of Italy and Germany;
- Austrian power controlled the German Confederation and northern Italy;
- Unification was achieved by the astuteness of Cavour and Bismarck;
- Both unification involved wars with foreign powers.

Differences:
- Prussia won three wars and achieved unification on her own;
- Italy won the wars for unification with foreign help (France, Prussia);
- The Zollverein had unified Germany economically under Prussian leadership.

Similarities:
- Division was the by-product of the Congress of Vienna;
- Nationalism was the by-product of the French occupation and Napoleon;
- Liberal movements attempted unification in 1848 but failed;
- Foreign powers (Austria, France, the Papacy) were an obstacle to unification;
- Piedmont and Prussia led the unification movement respectively;
- Unification was brought about by capable statesmen (Cavour, Bismarck);
- Both statesmen used secret diplomacy to achieve their aims;
- Both statesmen relied on nationalism and realpolitik;
- Both unification movements involved wars with foreign powers.
- After unification both were conservative and monarchist states.
- After unification both sought to become strong European Powers.

Differences:
- Prussia won three wars and achieved unification on her own;
- Piedmont needed the support of a foreign power (France);
- Prussia's Zollverein had already unified Germany economically;
- Italy had Romantic revolutionary leaders (Mazzini, Garibaldi).

</tbody>
</table>

The main points are:
- Refer to a map of Europe of the European Alliances in 1914;
- Triple Alliance Powers: Germany, Austria-Hungary, Italy;
- Triple Entente Powers: France, Russia, Great Britain;
- Italy entered the war on side of the Triple Entente Powers in May 1915;
- Turkey joined the war on the side of the Triple Alliance in Oct. 1914;
- During the war the names of the alliances changed:
  - The Triple Alliance became the Central Powers;
  - The Triple Entente became the Allied Powers.
- The USA joined the Allies in April 1917.
- Russia left the war in March 1918.

Refer to the military alliances mentioned in LEVEL 1. Motives for setting up the Triple Alliance:
- Statesmen responsible for the Triple Alliance was Bismarck;
- It developed from the Dual Alliance (1879) between Germany and Austria-Hungary;
- Germany’s motives: to preserve the balance of power in Europe where Germany was the strongest continental power; to isolate France; to make Austria-Hungary an ally in Eastern Europe against Russia; to avoid a war on two fronts;
- Austria-Hungary: wanted an ally against Russia, her main rival in the Balkans;
- Italy: to acquire colonies in North Africa from France;

Motive for setting up the Triple Entente:
- France wanted to end her isolation after her defeat in the Franco-Prussian War;
- Russia feared a combined attack by Austria-Hungary and Germany;
- French accepted to help Russia to industrialise; this offer was initially refused by Kaiser William II of Germany;
- Britain wanted to end her 'splendid isolation' because of the 'naval race' with Germany (1898-1912);

Refer to points mentioned in LEVEL 1.
- Dual Alliance (1879) between Germany and Austria-Hungary: part of Bismarck's system of alliances to prevent or to limit wars between the Great Powers; to prevent Germany's isolation;
- Triple Alliance (1882), was periodically renewed until it expired when Italy joined the Allies in World War I (1915); Its provisions were kept secret until 1919; When World War I broke out in 1914, Italy declared her neutrality for two reasons: she held Austria-Hungary as the aggressor; she was not obliged to go to war against Britain;
- The Triple Entente (1907) developed to counterbalance the threat posed by the Triple Alliance. It was formed in three stages:
  - 1894 the Franco-Russian Alliance (or Dual Alliance);
  - 1904: the Anglo-French Entente (or Éntente Cordiale);
  - 1907: the Triple Entente (Britain, France, Russia)

- The emergence of the Ottoman Empire;
- The annexation of Bosnia by Austria-Hungary;
- The Balkan Wars of 1912-1913;
- Archduke Franz Ferdinand’s visit to Sarajevo in June 1914;
- The Black Hand Serbian secret military society.

The main points are:
- Consequences of the annexation of Bosnia by Austria-Hungary: Austria-Hungary and Serbia became deadly enemies; Serbia sought the support of Russia for revenge; Germany and Austria-Hungary became closer allies; The Black Hand directed its terrorist activities against Austria-Hungary; Russia was too weak to fight and had to back down to Austria-Hungary’s demands; Britain, France and Russia came close together against Germany and Austria-Hungary.

Consequences of the Sarajevo Assassination:
- Austria-Hungary issued a harsh ultimatum against Serbia;
- Germany gave a blank cheque of support to Austria-Hungary;
- Russia promised to support Serbia;
- Austria-Hungary declared war on Serbia when the ultimatum expired;
- One by one, the European Powers were dragged into World War.

Refer to the points in LEVEL 1 and 2, together with the following:
- It strengthened the alliance between Austria-Hungary and Germany since the Kaiser promised Austria-Hungary his full support;
- Italy became less keen on the Triple Alliance because she did not like Austria’s expansion in the Balkans;
- Bulgaria declared its full independence from Turkey;
- Serbia received assurance of support from Russia in case of attack;
- Germany declared war on Russia and France and activated the Schlieffen Plan, in order to avoid a war on two fronts;
- Britain declared war on Germany to defend Belgian neutrality.

| Poison gas; trench warfare; tank and submarine warfare; aircraft; total war; war of attrition. | Poison gas; trench warfare; tank and submarine warfare; aircraft; total war; war of attrition. | *

The main points are:
- the invention of the war tank;
- the use of long-distance big guns and the machine gun;
- poison gas;
- the first fighter aircraft and the zeppelin;
- the submarine, the torpedo and the mines;
- trench warfare;
- decline of the cavalry in battles.

Refer to the list in LEVEL 1 together with the following:
- war of attrition;
- total war;
- stalemate;
- bombing of cities effecting civilian life;

Refer to the lists in LEVEL 1 and 2.
- Used in field battles as support to infantry;
- Battles started with massive bombardments; one result being shellshock among the troops;
- The machine gun was the main weapon used in trench warfare;
- The fighter bi-planes were armed with machine guns; zeppelins were used as the early bombers; these made possible the bombing of cities resulting in civilian casualties;
- Submarines were used to attack battleships and cargo ships;
- Trench warfare and barbed wire resulted in a stalemate on the Western and Eastern Fronts; armies made use of trained sharpshooters and snipers along the trenches;
- The cavalry gave way to the tank in battles and invasion campaigns.

The main points are:
- Territories lost by Germany in Europe (Alsace-Lorraine, Schleswig-Holstein, Posen);
- The overseas colonies became League of Nations mandates;
- the Rhineland was demilitarized;
- Germany was permitted an army of 100,000 soldiers, 6 small battleships and no air force);
- The payment of 55 billion US Dollars as reparations to the Allies in money and goods;
- The War Guilt clause: responsibility for having started the war.
- Germany was prohibited to join the League of Nations.

The main points are:
- Territories lost in Europe included:
  - Alsace and Lorraine annexed by were given back to France;
  - The Saar region was to be occupied by France for 15 years;
  - Northern Schleswig was given back to Denmark;
  - Silesia and Posen were given back to Poland.
  - Danzig became a free city under the League of Nations.

Germany’s overseas colonies:
- In Africa: Togoland, Cameroon, Tanganyika, Ruanda-Burundi and South West Africa were given as mandates to France, Britain, Belgium and S. Africa.
- In Oceania: German New Guinea, Samoa Islands were given as mandates to Australia and New Zealand.

The main points are:
- The three Allied statement involved in treaty were:
  - Woodrow Wilson, US President;
  - Lloyd George, British Prime Minister;
  - George Clemenceau, French Prime Minister;
- Wilson wanted a moderate treaty on Germany based on his 14 Points;
- Lloyd George wanted to weaken Germany as colonial and naval power;
- Clemenceau wanted to weaken Germany as a continental power, to exact reparations and to impose the ‘war guilt’ clause.
- Public opinion in France and Britain wanted a harsh treaty on Germany and the Allied statesmen could not ignore this, in view of imminent general elections in Britain and the US.

Main consequences of the treaty on Germany:
- Financial anti-economic chaos caused by hyperinflation; bankruptcies; mass unemployment, famine;
- Civil strife by extremist rival factions and weak coalition governments;
- Very unpopular with Germans and Weimar politicians were blamed for it;
- The setting up of the Nazi Party which aimed to abrogate the clauses of the treaty.

| British policy during the Protectorate:
- The clauses that concerned Malta in the Treaty of Amiens;
- Alexander Ball’s instructions to restore the institutions as they functioned at the time of the Knights;
- The Grand Harbour became a naval base;
- Stationing of a British infantry regiment for the duration of the Napoleonic Wars;
- The British were in favour of a Maltese-born as Bishop of Malta;
| Changes in British policy after 1813:
- Malta was turned into a British colony;
- Malta was assigned a military Governor;
- The Governor was to have complete control over the administration;
- The Maltese were denied any share in government.
| During the Protectorate:
- The Treaty of Amiens and its effect on the future of the Maltese Islands;
- Alexander Ball abolished the Maltese Congress and restored the administration as it functioned under the Knights: the Università, the law courts, the Maltese Regiments were absorbed in the British army;
- All property of the Knights (palaces, auberges, forts, St John’s Conventual Church) became property of the British Crown;
- Malta was used a naval, military and supply base for the British navy and army in the Mediterranean.
| Refer to and expand also on the points listed in LEVEL 2.
- The Treaty of Amiens (1802) and its effect on the future of the Maltese Islands;
- The significance of the Declaration of Rights of 1802 presented to King George III;
- An overview of the Administration under Alexander Ball: abolition of corsairing, control over the finances, cultivation of the potato crop; restored the University;
- The conclusions of the Royal Commission of 1811 about the Consiglio Popolare demanded by the Maltese;
- The petitions of 1805 and 1811 by Mario and Nicolo Testaferrata: Council of Government, trial by jury, free press, new Criminal Code; primary instruction, free port.

<td>6.1g Identify facts about Maitland’s colonial administration.</td>
<td>6.2g Explain the key reforms of Maitland’s colonial administration.</td>
<td>6.3g Discuss Maitland’s colonial administration.</td>

</tbody>
</table>

The main points are:
- The term of Maitland’s administration: 1813-1824;
- How Maitland tacked the Plague of 1813;
- Mention areas of Maitland’s reforms: the Law Courts, customs, administration;
- Reason for Maitland’s nickname of ‘King Tom’ by the Maltese;
- He set up the Malta Police.

Refer to the points mentioned in LEVEL 1, together with:
- Lord Bathurst instructions to Maitland;
- Maitland exercised ‘unfettered powers’ in Malta;
- Every aspect of the administration became centralized in Valletta and no decision was taken without his written approval;
- Maitland set the pattern of direct rule for successive governors until 1835;
- He abolished the universitas of Mdina and Valletta (1818);
- He made the importation and distribution of wheat a Government monopoly by a Board of Supply and subjected the Maltese to the ‘bread tax’;
- He started the practice of paying higher salaries to British than to Maltese officials;
- He centralized all judicial courts at Valletta, and modelled them on the British legal system;
- He set up the Malta Police Force (1814).

Elaborate on points mentioned in LEVEL 1 and 2.
Positive aspects:
- He set up an audit office to check Government spending and accountability;
- He introduced more efficiency, reduced over-spending and corruption among public officials;
- The administration continued to run smoothly even when he was absent as Civil Commissioner in the Ionian Islands;
- He simplified the Maltese judicial system based on the British model;
- He set up the Police Force, similar to the one introduced in Britain in 1814.

Negative aspects:
- Maitland continued to practice the paternalistic form of government of the Knights;
- The Maltese made no constitutional advancement;
- Maltese petitions were ignored outright;
- He excluded Maltese from higher positions in the administration;
- British officials were paid very high salaries when compared with their Maltese equivalents.
- He introduced the ‘bread tax’, which remained the main source of Government revenue until 1939.

</table>

The main points are:
- 1835 Constitution
  - 7 nominated members;
  - Meetings set by the Governor;
  - Members acted only as advisors.

- The 1849 Constitution:
  - 10 official and 8 elected members;
  - Malta was divided into 8 electoral districts: 7 in Malta and 1 in Gozo;
  - Right to vote given only to 3,000 Maltese from a population of about 120,000;
  - Council meeting led by the Governor;
  - The Governor could make use of the official majority (Order-in-Council).
  - The Governor held the right of veto and a casting vote.

The main points are:
- 1835 Council of Government:
  - Members in the Council could advise the Governor on policy or legislation, but the final decision rested with the Governor.
  - This Constitution did not meet expectations of the Maltese leaders who wanted an elective Council with legislative powers.

- The 1849 Council of Government:
  - Governor could issue laws by ‘Order-in-Council’ with the support of the official members;
  - Governor could use the veto to stop any legislation;
  - Governor could use the casting vote in case of a tie between the official and elected members;
  - Voting right restricted by property, education and tax qualification (roughly 3,000 voters in all);
  - Governor O’Ferrall’s ability to deal with the elected members and to avoid using the official majority;
  - O’Ferrall involved the elected members in sub-committees for Public Charities, University and Primary Instruction and Public Works.

<td>6.3i Discuss the short and/or long term effects of the liberty of the press in Malta.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

The main points are:
- The Secretary of State was in favour of a free press in Malta;
- The Maltese leaders had included it as one of the demands in their petitions;
- The free press was a unique characteristic of British society since the early 18th century;
- The introduction of a free press was met with opposition from the Church authorities, the King of the Two Sicilies and the conservative and clerical forces in Malta;
- A compromise was reached when the British introduced the ‘Law of Libel’ to protect the Catholic Church.

Arguments in favour:
- Arguments in favour:
  - It was intended to increase the reading public;
  - To serve as a source of information and education for the general public;
  - To model Maltese society on the British model;
  - Press censorship was to be abolished and applied only in wartime or during a state of emergency.
  - The Law of Libel gave the Bishop the right to sue in Court anyone who attacked the Catholic Church.

Arguments against:
- Arguments against:
  - Conservative elements in Malta held that it could undermine respect for authority in society;
  - The Catholic hierarchy held that its teachings could be attacked or ridiculed in the press;
  - The King of Sicily was afraid that liberal groups could use Malta to distribute revolutionary pamphlets/ideas in that kingdom.

Refer to the points mentioned in LEVEL 1 and 2 and discuss them in terms of short and/or long-term effects
- The following long-term effects can also be mentioned:
  - It gave Maltese leaders an added platform from where they could criticize government policies;
  - Through it, the aims and ideas of the early Maltese political parties could reach the general public;
  - It was used by the Church at the parish Level to foster the Catechism and religious devotion.

The main points are:
- Define the Language Question;
- The Keenan Report;
- The languages involved: Italian, English, Maltese;
- The political parties involved: Reform Party, Anti-Reform Party (Partito Nazionale);
- The role of the main Maltese leaders: Sigismondo Savona, Fortunato Mizzi, Gerald Strickland in his position as Chief Secretary to the Government.

The main causes are:
- Malta was a strategic British colony;
- Britain’s policy of Anglicization of Maltese society;
- Britain’s fear of Italian influence in Malta;
- The pro-Italian education policy of Canon Paolo Pullicino (1850-1880);
- Keenan’s suggested reforms on language and education in Malta.

The main consequences are:
- The setting up of two opposing political parties: one pro-British and one pro-Italian;
- English gradually replaced Italian as an official language in Malta;
- English became a compulsory subject in primary and secondary education;
- English became a requisite for employment in the Civil Service and the Dockyard;
- Constitutional progression (in 1887) and retrogression (in 1903).

The main points are:
- Keenan’s Report on education in Malta (1879);
- Sigismondo Savona appointed Director of Education (1880) who introduces the pari passu system;
- Formation of two opposing political parties: the Reform Party and the Anti-Reform Party/Partito Nazionale (1879-1880);
- Gerald Strickland’s language reforms in education (free choice); the University and the Law Courts;
- The reaction of the PN elected members and the suspension of the 1887 Constitution (1903);
- The Constitution of 1921 placed English and Italian as the official languages in Malta;

<td>Fortress economy; Continental System/ Blockade; The Plague of 1813, Crimean War; The opening of the Suez Canal.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

The main points are:
- Economic booms:
  - The Continental Blockade (1806-812);
  - The Crimean War (1854-1856);
  - The opening of the Suez Canal in 1869;
  - Drainage works to include the Cottonera;
  - Enlargement of the dockyard.
- Economic recessions:
  - The Plague of 1813;
  - The further decline of the cotton industry after 1865;
  - Technological improvements in the shipping industry in the late 1890s and early 1900s.

The main points are:
- Economic booms:
  - During the Continental Blockade, Malta became a British centre for contraband trade towards Napoleonic Europe;
  - The Crimean War turned the harbours into a naval, military and a hospital base for British and French troops travelled to and from the Crimea;
  - The opening of the Suez Canal increased considerably the number of cargo ships entering Grand Harbour;
  - Extensive public works projects created temporary jobs: e.g., more facilities in Grand Harbour; drainage works; enlargement of the dockyard due to the construction of large ships (e.g., ironclads).
- Economic recessions:
  - The Plague of 1813 nearly stopped all trade between Malta and other ports in the Mediterranean;
  - The cotton industry declined rapidly with the end of the American Civil War in 1865;
  - In the late 1890s technological advancement and larger cargo ships led to ships by-passing Malta’s harbour and dockyard.

Refer to and elaborate on the points mentioned in LEVEL 1 and 2, together with the following:
- Shipping tonnage entering Grand Harbour increased by ten times during the Continental Blockade;
- The Crimean War increased wages but brought about a higher cost of living;
- After 1869, Malta became a coal-bunkering station in the centre of the Mediterranean;
- Facilities in Grand Harbour had to be increased by the construction of Portu Novu (at the Menqa, Marsa); the construction of larger docks and hydraulic cranes at the dockyard (e.g., Somerset Dock in 1871);
- Extension of underground drainage system to the Cottonera was just one major public works projects, others included: the Royal Opera Theatre and Mt Carmel Hospital at Attard;
- Cheaper cotton from the US and Egypt effected the export of Maltese cotton; farmers shifted cultivation to other crops in demand (e.g. potato);
- In the 1890s ships started using oil instead of coal. Malta as a bunkering station declined since less coal was in demand. Ships using oil could travel longer distances without having to refuel for coal in Malta’s harbour.

<td>▪ The state of farming and the cotton industry: Farming backward and pre-industrial; lack of modern machinery; low production due to occasional droughts; farmers lived close to subsistence level.</td>
<td>▪ Low agricultural produce unable to sustain an constant increase in population; large families meant farmers had very low living standards; farmers often borrowed money at high interest rates to buy fertilizers and machinery from rich landowners.</td>
<td>▪ Cotton farmers who migrated to the harbour area in the 1870s found job at the dockyard, in extensive public works (refer to projects mentioned in Level 1) and fortifications (e.g., the Victoria Lines, Forts Rinella and Cambridge, etc., that were being constructed by the British Government.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>▪ Cotton started to decline after 1800 when Spain closed its market in Catalonia to Maltese cotton since it was an ally of France; cotton exports increased during the American Civil War (1861-1865), but then declined again;</td>
<td>▪ Foreign machine-made cotton fabric from Egypt and the USA was cheaper and softer than Maltese hand-made cotton; the decline of the cotton industry coincided with the opening of the Suez Canal in 1869; hundreds of cotton farmers migrated to the harbour area in search for jobs; other farmers started cultivating the potato crop instead which was very much sought by the British servicemen in Malta.</td>
<td>▪ Malta became a hub for cargo ships carrying grain from the Black Sea; the Menqa was developed into a coal bunkering station for ships passing through Malta on their route to the Suez Canal and beyond.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>▪ Projects intended to extend the Grand Harbour for military and economic reasons: Construction of dredging of Marsa inlet; construction of Portu Novu at Menqa; building of larger docks (e.g., Somerset Dock in 1871); extension of underground sewage from Valletta to the Three Cities; construction of the Breakwater in the early 1900s.</td>
<td>▪ Portu Novu construction for merchant shipping; dredging of Marsa inlet from swamps which were causing malaria; larger docks were necessary at the dockyard to house the larger ironclad warships of the 1870s; the Breakwater made ships anchored in the harbour safer against heavy storms and against torpedo attacks; the first Central Power Station was opened in 1892 near Crucifix Hill to distribute electricity for industrial and domestic use, without which industrialization could not take place.</td>
<td>▪ The projects in Grand Harbour from the 1860s onwards marked the beginning of industrialization in Malta. These could only be undertaken and financed by the British Colonial Government; their aim was to make Malta a more secure colony for the British Empire; to improve the health and living conditions of the people and the garrison; to provide jobs, reduce unemployment and combat extreme poverty among the Maltese.</td>

<td>7.3c Discuss the importance of the Continental Blockade on the Maltese economy.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

The main points are:

- The causes:
  - The Napoleonic Wars;
  - Malta was a British colony;
  - Malta’s geographical position;
  - The British navy in the Mediterranean.

- The consequences:
  - More ships entered Grand Harbour;
  - The harbour became a centre for contraband trade;
  - Increase in wages;
  - The Maltese became loyal British subjects.

The main points are:

- The causes:
  - The Napoleonic Wars in Europe;
  - Napoleon’s attempt to defeat Britain by ruining her economy;
  - The fact that Malta was a British possession;
  - Malta’s geographical position, close to Italy and distanced from France;
  - British naval superiority in the Mediterranean.

- The consequences:
  - Malta registered a 10-fold increase of shipping tonnage entering Grand Harbour;
  - Malta was turned into a British naval and military arsenal;
  - Malta became a British centre for contraband trade towards Europe;
  - Increase in wages;
  - Improvement in living standards.
  - The Maltese came to see British rule as a source of employment and prosperity.
  - The British recognized the importance of Malta as a military and naval base in time of war.

Refer to the points mentioned in LEVEL 2, together with the following:

- Reasons for the collapse of the Continental Blockade:
  - Russia and Portugal refused to adhere to the Continental Blockade;
  - Napoleon’s defeat in the Russian Campaign speeded up his downfall;
  - Refusal of Europeans to support the Blockade.

- A flourishing black market and contraband trade in Europe under French control.

- Consequences of its collapse on the Maltese economy:
  - It diminished the number of cargo ships entering Grand Harbour to the pre-Blockade Level;
  - It resulted in a sharp increase in unemployment;
  - It resulted in a decline in wages and profit;
  - These conditions were worsened with the outbreak of plague in May 1813.

The main points are:

Positive effects:
- It enhanced Malta’s strategic value;
- It increased employment for the Maltese;
- It increased wages for the Maltese;
- The Grand Harbour served as a military arsenal and naval base for the British and French navies;
- Malta became known as the ‘Nurse of the Mediterranean’

Negative effects:
- It increased the cost of living for the working classes;
- It increased the prices of many basic commodities;
- Sick and injured allied soldiers were brought from the Crimea for recovery in Malta;
- Maltese workers with fixed wages (e.g., Civil Servants) did not benefit from the economic prosperity;
- Farmers’ income increased due to a higher demand for agricultural products.
- Eye-witness contemporaries reported the following about Malta at the time of the Crimean War:
  - A British official reported that: ‘Money is circulating in profusion...and it is so plentiful that people though they grumble at the high prices of provisions, feel no real inconvenience for them.’
  - A tourist who came to Malta in 1861 noticed that: ‘Before the Russian War, Malta was one of the cheapest places in the world, but now things are considerably dearer than in France or England.’

Refer to and elaborate on the points in LEVEL 1 and 2. Short-term effects:
- Increase in wages;
- Increase in prices;
- Increase in jobs in the harbour and the dockyard;
- More ships entered Malta’s harbor.

Long-term effects:
- The British Government increase its military spending in Malta;
- It accentuated Malta’s fortress economy.
- Military experts came to Malta to report on Malta’s fortifications and defensive system. Their proposals resulted in the upgrading and building of new fortification networks from 1870 onwards (e.g., Victoria Lines, Fort Rinella and Cambridge, and other forts and batteries at Sliema, Delimara etc.);
- The Admiralty enlarged the facilities at the dockyard (e.g., building of Somerset Dock for the newly invented larger iron-clad warships);
- After the Crimean War, the British Government gave substantial annual money grants to help the Maltese Government balance its budget.

The main points are:
- It provided a short and safer route from Britain to India via the Mediterranean instead of sailing around the African Continent;
- Ships could now avoid the stormy Cape of Good Hope;
- Shipping insurance premiums went down due to less risk for cargo shipped through the Mediterranean;
- More commercial ships made use of Malta’s harbours;
- More job opportunities in the Grand Harbour;
- Maltese families started migrating from the villages to the harbour area in search of employment;
- Grand Harbour used a coal-bunkering station.

The main points are:
- It brought a sharp increase of ships entering Grand Harbour;
- It brought more work for the dockyard;
- It brought about the dredging of the inner part of the Grand Harbour for the construction of Portu Novu for commercial cargo ships;
- Malta’s harbour was turned into a coal-bunkering station for ships travel to and from the Suez Canal;
- It ushered a shift in the Maltese population from the villages to the harbour area;
- It gave rise to new suburbs close to the Grand Harbour (e.g. Marsa, Hamrun, Pietà, Paola).
- Malta started to experience the first signs of industrialization in the Grand Harbour area;
- Increased Malta’s strategic importance.

</table>

The main reasons for emigration:
- It was encouraged by the Colonial Government as the most effective way to reduce unemployment in Malta;
- Widespread unemployment among the working classes, especially during recessions and slumps;
- Organized emigration by the Government to other British colonies;
- Job opportunities for unskilled workers abroad;
- The absence of local manufacturing and exporting industries;
- Job opportunities offering higher wages in Mediterranean seaports.

Refer to the points in LEVEL 1, together with:
- Overpopulation and a high birthrate;
- A stagnant economy persisted for decades after the Plague of 1813;
- Widespread illiteracy among the lower classes;
- No significant manufacturing and exporting industries;
- Maltese businessmen lacked entrepreneurship skills;
- Agriculture was backward;
- The Colonial Government was the main sources of employment through the military establishments and the dockyard;
- Emigration was the only solution of the Government to reduce unemployment;
- Recessions or slumps made the unemployment problem worse;
- Organised emigration by the Colonial Government made it easier for the Maltese uneducated classes to emigrate;
- In the 19th century most Maltese preferred to emigrate to Mediterranean seaports: the determining factors were: proximity, climate, language, customs very similar to Malta;
- In the 20th century many Maltese emigrants found English-speaking countries (Australia, Canada, the USA, UK) more attractive; the determining factors were: English was spoken, British institutions and way of life, compulsory education; Maltese emigrants were more welcomed due to their heroic stand in World War II.

Refer to and elaborate on the cause mentioned in LEVEL 1 and 2.

For the consequences, the main points are:
- Widespread poverty among the working classes;
- The Colonial Government was blamed for having kept Malta economically backward;
- Whole families at times lived up to subsistence Level;
- A high population density resulted in the harbour areas;
- Development of slums in Valletta and the Three Cities;
- Poor living standards in matters of hygiene, diet, clothing, dwellings.
- The Colonial Government sought to create jobs through a system of public works: (e.g. fortifications, docks, hospitals, Opera House, Portu Novu, the Breakwater, infrastructural developments, such as drainage works, water supply, gardens, roads, etc.).

Plague; cholera; smallpox; undulant fever; trachoma; tuberculosis. | 7.3g Discuss the causes and effects of infectious Diseases and the measures taken to eradicate them.
Plague; cholera; smallpox; undulant fever; trachoma; tuberculosis. |

The main points are:

- The main infectious diseases:
  - Plague
  - Cholera
  - Tuberculosis (Consumption)
  - Smallpox
  - Undulant fever
  - Trachoma

Measures to combat them:

- Strict quarantine regulations;
- Isolation of patients at the Lazzaretto;
- Prohibition of public gatherings;
- An underground sewage system;
- Water supply in the homes;
- Pasteurization of milk;

The main points are:

- Plague: infected rats and merchandise on ships;
- Cholera: contamination from sewage water;
- Tuberculosis: contamination from coughing;
- Smallpox: close contact with farm animals;
- Undulant fever: drinking milk from sick goats;
- Trachoma: unhygienic and dusty environment in the streets and the homes.

Measures to combat them:

- Imposition of strict quarantine and curfew;
- Isolation of patients at the Lazzaretto;
- Malta’s climate was thought to improve health of people ill with tuberculosis;
- People isolated themselves in their own home;
- Prohibition of public gatherings (schools, churches, feasts);
- The Cottonera underground sewage project;
- Pipelines to supply drinking water in the homes;
- Setting up of District Medical and Sanitary Officers;
- Vaccination against smallpox;
- 1855: Inoculation against smallpox made obligatory;
- 1905: The discovery of the undulant fever germ in goats milk by Sir Temi Zammit;
- Pasteurization of milk against undulant fever;
- Awareness campaigns on personal hygiene in schools and on the media of the time.

Refer to points in LEVEL 2, together with:

Causes:

- Contact with foreigners through trade and merchandise;
- The cure for most diseases was ineffective;
- Europe’ cold winter climate resulted in people developing lung infections and tuberculosis;
- Poor public sanitation and personal hygiene;
- Overcrowded dwellings in the harbor towns;
- Frequent contact with farm animals;
- Filthy streets with dust, sewage and animal waste (human, goats, horses, mules);

Consequences:

- Undulant fever killed many babies and young children;
- Undulant fever affected the British garrison as well;
- Fear of contamination made people suspicious of each other and practiced personal isolation;
- The sick felt helpless since no effective cure existed;
- The medical authorities felt overwhelmed when such diseases reached epidemic proportions;
- The Government undertook ambitious public works projects to improve public sanitation as a preventive measure against infectious diseases.
- The setting up of MMU and prohibition to sell fresh milk.
- Awareness campaigns in schools (School Medical Service) and on Rediffusion.

<td>9.3.1 Compare and contrast Malta’s role and contribution to the Allied victory in the First and the Second World War.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

The main points are:
- The First World War:
  - Malta used as the ‘Nurse of the Mediterranean’
  - The harbours served as an ammunition store, a naval and submarine base for the Allies;
  - Malta was never attacked by the enemy;
  - Full employment and a rise in wages;
  - Food scarcities and a rise in the price of bread;
- The Second World War:
  - Frequent air-raids by the Axis Powers;
  - Malta served as an operational base for the Allied fleets;
  - The dockyard repaired Allied ships and assembled aircraft though components from Britain;
  - Sick or injured Allied soldiers were hospitalized in Malta;
  - Malta served as a war prison camp;
  - 800 volunteers joined the Maltese Labour Battalion to dig trenches during the Gallipoli Campaign (1915); - Maltese volunteers joined the British Navy.

Refer also to the points mentioned in LEVEL 1.

The Second World War:
- Malta served as an operational base for the Allied forces;
- The dockyard repaired Allied ships;
- Britain conducted air-strikes from Malta against Axis convoys on their way to North Africa;
- Malta’s resistance contributed to the victory for the Allies in North Africa.
- Maltese contributed in the war effort in various military establishments (Royal Malta Artillery, the Navy, the Air Force, the dockyard, as demolition rescue gangs).

Refer to and compare and contrast the point mentioned in LEVEL 1 and 2.
- The First World War:
  - Malta was affected indirectly since she was not a military target of the Central Powers;
  - Fewer Maltese casualties than in World War II;
  - Malta was more effected economically than militarily;
  - Food scarcities caused high prices and a black market;
  - The dockyard doubled its workforce.

The Second World War:
- Malta was directly affected by air-raids;
- More military and civilian casualties;
- Food scarcities caused high price and a black market;
- Shelters and black out as air-raid precautions;
- Malta was the most bombed place compared to its size.

The main points are:
- The Causes:
  - Rise in unemployment;
  - Discharges from the dockyard;
  - New taxes on property and entertainment;
  - High price of bread and other food items;
  - Maltese leaders met at the National Assembly to draft a new constitution;
  - An anti-British and anti-Government press;
  - University students protested against changes in their degree courses.
- The Consequences:
  - The shooting and killing of four Maltese protesters by the Marines: Wenzu Dyer, Giuseppe Bajada, Manuel Attard, Carmelo Abela (wounded on 8 June, he died on 16 June);
  - The funeral procession of the 3 victims on 9 June to the Addorata Cemetery;
  - The Government set up a Commission of Inquiry; the rioters targeted Maltese grain importers and symbols of British rule (e.g., the Union Jack, the building of the pro-British Daily Malta Chronicle);
  - Mass gatherings in Valletta were prohibited;
  - Reporting on the riots in newspapers was censored;
  - The Governor started a long-term programme of public works to reduce unemployment;
  - The Governor pleaded Malta's case for a self-governing constitution;
  - The Camera del Lavoro (set up in 1920), became the Labour Party (1921) which included distinguished followers of Manuel Dimech;
  - The 1921 Constitution granted self-government in local affairs.

Refer also to the points mentioned in LEVEL 1 and discuss them in terms of short-term and long-term causes and consequences.
